Continue Striking Deep in N. Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. bombers and fighter-bombers struck deep into North Vietnam today, attacking supply depots, transportation facilities and air defenses 80 miles south of Hanoi, the northern capital.

Aground, North Vietnamese troops launched furious attacks around An Loc and knocked a South Vietnamese battalion out of action near that district capital 60 miles north of Saigon.

In announcing the raids on North Vietnam, the U.S. Command said the attacks centered around Thanh Hoa near the coast, 215 miles north of the demilitarized zone separating the Vietnams. An Air Force F4 Phantom jet was shot down 42 miles southeast of Thanh Hoa. The two crewmen bailed out over the Gulf of Tonkin and were rescued by helicopter, the Command reported.

The raids were the deepest since heavy strikes last Sunday near Hanoi and the nearby port of Haiphong. In both cases, the aerial blows were aimed at knocking out supplies feeding the North Vietnamese offensive in South Vietnam.

The U.S. command said in a statement that the latest raids were against "military targets in North Vietnam that are helping support the Communist invasion across the demilitarized zone into South Vietnam."

The Command declined to disclose the number of aircraft involved in the strikes, but other sources said as many as 20 B52s and 100 to 150 Air Force and Navy fighter-bombers took part.

The United States resumed the bombing of North Vietnam last April 6, a week after the North Vietnamese launched the biggest offensive since Tet 1968.

The battalion put out of action at An Loc was a paratrooper unit credited with good fighting ability. It lost 100 men killed or wounded out of 500 and was lifted out of the battle zone by helicopters, field reports said.

The battalion was holding Hill 609, a defensive position 2½ miles southeast of An Loc. The enemy opened an artillery bombardment Thursday, followed by a ground assault. The paratroopers were forced back two miles to the south.

Enemy troops have been trying all week to capture An Loc and thus make it the first provincial capital to fall since the spring offensive began.

Driven back from most of An Loc after occupying more than half the city, the North Vietnamese renewed the attack Thursday.

At dusk, An Loc was reported under artillery and rocket fire and another airborne battalion was battling enemy forces who were attacking on the southwestern edge of the city.

Heavy fighting also was reported at the district town of Dau Tieng, 40 miles northwest of Saigon. Field reports said the town and outposts around it were under shelling attack and civilians were fleeing to the south. This could be an outflanking movement against the defenders at An Loc.

On the sea front, American officials said U.S. destroyers sank a North Vietnamese patrol boat and traded fire with another in the Gulf of Tonkin Thursday night.

The U.S. Command also disclosed the loss of six more American aircraft—two in the last two days and four others during the first two weeks of Hanoi's offensive. This raised the number of U.S. aircraft reported lost in the three-week-old offensive to 36, 16 planes and 20 helicopters, with nine crewmen killed, 11 wounded and 42 missing.

The Tonkin Gulf clashes were the fifth and sixth of the week, and a U.S. military source said sea battles off the North Vietnamese coast probably would continue "as long as we have gunfire along the coast and we have to get in close."

Spade Work For City Hall

Despite inclement weather, several Sedalia civic officials and businessmen came to see Mayor Jerry Jones officiate at the groundbreaking ceremony for the new city hall. Work on the building will be started after utility lines are relocated. The two men at extreme right are H. F. Dean and Richard Dean, both of Dean Construction Co., the building contractors. Third from Mayor Jones' left is Donald Buller of Sammons and Buller, architects.

Protest Bombs

Antiwar Groups Strike Classes

By BOB MONROE
Associated Press Writer

Some students boycotted classes today in scattered campus demonstrations against the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam and in Chicopee, Mass., police arrested 95 antiwar protestors as they blocked the gates of Westover Air Force Base.

About 2,000 students voted to go on strike at the University of Washington at a morning rally, but classes remained in session at the 33,000-student campus.

Students and faculty members at the University of Miami for the most part ignored a call to boycott classes, and a 24-hour vigil called by antiwar activists Thursday night was called off after two hours when only 10 persons showed up.

University of Wisconsin faculty members vowed to continue classes there despite a strike called by the Wisconsin Student Association.

The 95 arrested at Chicopee were among a crowd of 250 antiwar protestors who converged at the gates of Westover Air Force Base.

There was no violence, and the demonstrators did not resist being taken into custody. They were taken to police headquarters in police vans and cruisers.

The demonstration came as protesters were set to express opposition to the war at scores of the nation's colleges and universities.

In New England alone, students from 45 schools were picketing in support of a nationwide strike called for today by leaders of several national antiwar and student groups.

Forms of protest at other schools ranged from marches to teach-ins to boycotts to digging bomb-sized craters. In Ohio, Oberlin College students planned to burn a simulated Vietnam village to show the effect of bombing.

Token elements of the National Guard patrolled the University of Maryland today. Three nights of protest earlier this week ended in violence and led to a declaration of a state of emergency Thursday.

There was no further violence Thursday night but about 140 persons were arrested for refusing to obey a 9 p.m. curfew

Explore Lunar Terrain

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 16 astronauts John W. Young and Charles M. Duke Jr. stepped onto a rocky plateau today to begin man's first exploration in the mountains of the moon.

Young's footfall, the ninth human imprint in the ancient lunar dust, was recorded at 11:56 a.m. EST. Duke followed him down the ladder of the landing ship Orion five minutes later.

"Here you are mysterious and unknown Descartes, highland plains," Young said as he touched the surface. "Apollo 16 is going to change your image."

The explorers hope in this mountainous Descartes region to find evidence that volcanoes once erupted beneath the lunar surface, sculpturing mountains, canyons and plains in the formative period more than four billion years ago.

An antenna problem on Orion prevented a television camera from relaying pictures of their first steps on the moon as was the case on previous lunar landings.

The astronauts were to erect their own portable antenna on the surface to make later television possible.

Young and Duke, who almost had their landing cancelled Thursday when astronaut Thomas K. Mattingly had trouble with the command ship Casper, were awestruck by the landscape of mountains, craters and desolate desert-like terrain.

"It's absolutely beautiful!" Duke exclaimed. "There are rocks all over the place."

"Fantastic, super!" Young said.

"There's a big hole over there. I never saw such a big hole," the Apollo 16 commander commented. "It's probably 10 meters deep."

He said the landing site was smooth and couldn't have been better.

"Anyplace else around here and we'd have landed on a great big slope," he said.

The explorers, eager to get started today, quickly ran through their suitup and checklists and moved outside ahead of schedule.

They depressurized the cabin so that it matched the outside vacuum and after checking with Mission Control, Young said: "Okay, let's go."

As the Apollo 16 commander stood on the hatch stoop, he exclaimed: "My golly, how beautiful! There is a big boulder!"

During the seven-hour excursion, Young and Duke planned to set up a nuclear-powered science station and to drive their battery-powered moon car across an undulating plain to inspect two craters named Spook and Flag for evidence of volcanic activity and other lunar secrets.

Mission Control told Young and Duke before they retired Thursday night that one of their moon walks might have to be canceled and their time on the surface shortened because of a late landing that resulted from an engine problem in the command ship Casper.

Cost of Living News Is Bright

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rise in living costs eased last month and workers' average earnings showed the largest March increase in seven years, the government said today.

The Consumer Price Index, measuring typical family spending rose two-tenths of one per cent, less than half the February increase, including a marked slowing of grocery prices from the month before, the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

The bureau said that on a seasonally adjusted basis—figuring the usually expected March increase—there was no change in living costs for the first month in more than five years.

The report said living costs were 3.5 per cent above a year ago compared with a 4.1 per cent annual rate of increase in the six months before President Nixon imposed the wage-price freeze.

The March increase brought the index to 124.0 of its 1967 base of 100, meaning it took $12.40 last month for every $10 worth of living costs five years ago.

In other major categories, housing costs rose two-tenths of one per cent; clothing, five-tenths; transportation, one-tenth; medical care, three-tenths; and recreation, two-tenths, the bureau said.

Average weekly earnings of nearly 50 million rank-and-file workers rose $1.09 to $131.73 per week and were $8.08 or 6.5 per cent above a year earlier.

After allowing for the rise in living costs, the bureau said, the average paycheck was seven-tenths of one per cent up for the month and 2.9 per cent above a year ago.

"This increase from a year ago was the largest over-the-year gain reported for any March since 1965," the report said.

The report said most of the rise in living costs in March was due to higher property taxes and higher prices for clothing, eggs, beef, veal and restaurant meals. Prices were lower for vegetables, pork and mortgage interest.

"Pork prices declined for the first time since October, 1971. Beef and veal prices continued to rise but the increase was less than in recent months," it said.

"Prices of fresh vegetables, particularly lettuce and tomatoes, declined sharply instead of rising as they usually do in March, and fresh fruit prices rose much less than usual," it added.

However, the bureau said, the over-all one-tenth of one per cent rise for groceries compared with a usual slight decline in March and restaurant meals were up four-tenths of one per cent for the largest increase since last September.

"Property taxes continue to rise. Charges for some housekeeping services and home maintenance and repair services increased more than in February. Water and sewerage charges and intercity bus fares also rose," the bureau said.

Gas Tax Increase Approved By House

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A bill to raise gasoline tax 2-cents a gallon headed for the desk of the governor today on a 94-25 vote from the Missouri House.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes vetoed the same increase last session, but Sen. William B. Waters, D-Liberty, has predicted he will sign the increase this year.

A last ditch effort to give mass transit authorities exemption from motor fuel tax held the measure up for about an hour before the final vote of approval. St. Louis members tried to get additional money for Bi-State Transit Authority, but that provision had been considered unconstitutional in the Senate and knocked out of the bill. The House accepted the conference report which deleted that exemption.

The bill would raise the present 5-cents a gallon motor fuel tax to 7-cents a gallon and is estimated to produce an additional $57 million a year. Cities share would be about $8 million and counties about $3 million additional revenue annually.

Earlier the House sent the governor bills authorizing establishment of solid waste disposal systems in certain counties and a bill to license boarding homes for the elderly.

The solid waste bill would authorize second, third and fourth class counties to levy a tax up to 10 cents—if approved by the voters—to fund disposal facilities. It would not apply to cities already having their own disposal systems. It was passed 140-1.

The House accepted Senate changes in a measure to make licensing of boarding homes mandatory although the sponsor said the changes pulled the teeth from his original bill.

Senate

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Senate voted 29-2 today to let residents in the St. Louis metropolitan area voice their desires in a preferential election on whether to continue to use Lambert-St. Louis Airport indefinitely or build a new airport in Illinois.

The Senate had to suspend its rules to take up the proposal— an unusual procedure. But it voted 25-3 to do that instead of changing the rules for a one-time exception.

An effort to give priority attention to the bill failed Thursday.

Sen. William J. Cason, D-Clinton, said he was reluctant to take the extraordinary step of suspending the rules, but he felt it was called for as part of the campaign to keep any new metropolitan airport in Missouri.

The election probably would be held in conjunction with the November general election.

The House passed the bill earlier but refused to adopt an emergency clause which would have permitted the election to be held at the time of the August primary election.

Voters will be given a choice of alternatives.

One would continue use of Lambert field as long as possible, then construction of a new airport in Missouri. The other would favor immediate construction of an airport in Illinois.

Jaycees Honor County's Sheriff

Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax was selected "Outstanding Law Enforcement Officer of the Year" Thursday night at the Third Annual Jaycees Law Enforcement Awards Banquet at Bothwell Hotel. The presentation was made by the featured speaker, State Senator Ike Skelton, D-Lexington.

Fairfax was chosen by a six-man committee from a list of 50 law enforcement officials in Sedalia and the county.

With brief remarks Fairfax accepted the award, commenting "about all I can say is thank you." The news of Fairfax's selection was greeted by a standing ovation from the audience of 35 Jaycees and area law enforcement personnel.

In his remarks, Skelton sounded a familiar theme, saying "respect for law and order begins in childhood, when a youngster learns that a policeman is his friend."

The 28th district Democrat stated "no government succeeds unless its laws are enforced." He said law and order "is nothing more than the men you see sitting around you." Skelton continued: "They (law enforcement officers) do not enforce the whims of men," they enforce the law.

Skelton also took the opportunity to explain his proposal for a Missouri Bureau of Investigation. He said the bureu would have one function — to coordinate and cooperate with local law enforcement officials.

Sheriff Emmett Fairfax

A former Lafayette County prosecuting attorney, Skelton also said he favored and attempted to place into law a program of basic law in the state's high schools.

He also noted the role of the policeman has changed with the times. At one time a policeman could do his job "with a smile, a little tact and sometimes the strength of his arms," Skelton told his audience. Today's law enforcement officials must have a greater knowledge of the law, Skelton said, due to court rulings in cases like Miranda vs. Arizona. He cited changes in search and seizure laws and technological advancements as further examples of changes in the law enforcement field.

Jaycee president Joe Doggett, told the gathering law enforcement personnel "spend a lot of time protecting us." He concluded "it is an honor for the Jaycees to honor these people."

The head table included Doggett and his wife, Sedalia Police Chief William Miller, policeman and Mrs. Roger Plankenhorn, Skelton, Fairfax and his wife, Judge and Mrs. Frank Meyers and Pettis County Prosecuting Attorney and Mrs. Adam Fischer.

Car Care Section Scheduled Sunday

The arrival of Spring and the approach of summer annually spell out one thing — vacations are near.

Taking a vacation trip, however, isn't as simple as it sounds. Quite often the experience can prove costly because motorists have failed to properly prepare their vehicles for the journey. In order to offer the opportunity for hazard-free and less expensive summer outings, The Sedalia Democrat-Capital will publish its Spring Car Care Section this Sunday.

It offers everything from exhaust emission control hints to proper tire care. Watch for this readership extra in The Democrat-Capital Sunday.

$4.8 Million Damage Suit Filed Here

A $4.8 million, four-count malpractice suit was filed in Pettis County Circuit Court Friday on a change of venue from Cole County Circuit Court.

Plaintiffs in the action are Emma G. Tussey and Jacob Q. Tussey, Route 2, Fulton, who claim negligence by Dr. R. A. Osbourn and Dr. James K. Ritterbusch, Fulton, and Dr. Fred P. Handler, a Jefferson City pathologist.

The three defendants claimed in their April 6 motion for a change of venue that residents of Cole County were prejudiced in the case and that they could not receive a fair trial there.

Emma Tussey charges in the first count of the second amended petition in the suit that due to alleged negligence by Drs. Osbourn, Ritterbusch and Handler she has suffered extreme anguish and pain and that her ability to earn a livelihood with her husband in their Fulton antique store has been completely destroyed. She asks $1.7 million on that count.

Jacob Tussey charges in count two of the suit that he has lost the services of a business partner and wife, and that his wife's condition will continue to worsen. He seeks $700,000.

Another $1.7 million is sought in count three by Mrs. Tussey, who alleges that the physicians involved were aware of a malignant tumor but concealed that information from her and charged three instances of assault and battery against Osbourn and Ritterbusch for subsequent treatment she claims complicated and worsened her health. Her husband seeks $700,000 in count four due to the alleged concealment action by Osbourn and Ritterbusch.

The suit stems from a Dec. 27, 1968 subtotal hysterectomy allegedly performed by Osbourn and Ritterbusch on Mrs. Tussey at Callaway Memorial Hospital, Fulton, to treat discharges of blood. The suit alleges Handler was sent a tissue sample of Mrs. Tussey in April, 1969, after the bleeding failed to stop. Her cervix was reportedly removed later to correct the condition, and was followed by two other surgical procedures to correct a complication of the second operation, she alleges.

Mrs. Tussey sought out treatment at the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., after the fourth surgery, where it was allegedly diagnosed that she had a massive malignant pelvic tumor which had affected several internal organs.

The suit alleges that she has since undergone extensive surgical procedures including two colostomies and removal of several lower abdominal organs. It further alleges such treatment was necessary due to earlier improper treatment administered by Osbourn and Ritterbusch, based on Handler's purported diagnosis of tissue samples, allowing the cancer to grow. Another allegation is that earlier surgery necessitating attempted corrections was done carelessly.

The Tusseys claim in the third and fourth counts of the suit that Drs. Osbourn, Ritterbusch and Handler concealed from them the fact that a March, 1970, diagnosis allegedly revealed a malignant cancer, a fact the Tusseys claim they did not find out until their attorneys obtained her hospital records in November, 1970.

Circuit Court Clerk Bill Lyles said a trial date for the case probably wouldn't be set until the September term of court.

Government Operation A Problem

The second "Goals for Missouri" meeting for Pettis County was held Thursday at the Federal Building, Fourth and Lamine, with four Sedalians and two Show-Me Regional Planning Commission officials present.

The first meeting was held last April 13. "Goals for Missouri" meetings are being held in all regional planning county seats to gather citizens' complaints and suggestions for improvement of services provided by government agencies and for the proper utilization of natural resources.

Frank Schwarzer, Show-Me Regional Planning Commission director, told The Democrat-Capital that those present at Thursday's meeting felt that "not enough people understand the operation of government." They suggested better means of communication between government and people, he said.

Some felt that the tax structure needs to be equalized so the tax burden will not be on any one segment of society, Schwarzer reported.

The group also discussed the need for additional housing in Pettis County, especially for moderate income senior citizens.

Regarding public safety, those present complimented the city and fire departments for their services. They also expressed satisfaction about the operation of the county jail. However, some dissatisfaction was expressed at the frequent changes made in Sedalia's police personnel. Some felt that an improved salary scale might reduce this problem, Schwarzer reported.

Lens Is Stolen

Franklin Rogers, 523 East 13th, a member of the Sedalia Police Department, reported at 12:30 a.m. Friday that someone had stolen a red lens cover from a rotating light mounted on top of squad car 11 while it was parked at LeRoy's Steakhouse, 905 South Limit, early Friday morning. Officers were inside eating supper, the report indicated.

Weber Files To Represent 46th District

George W. (Bud) Weber

George W. (Bud) Weber, 39, Marshall, chairman of the Saline County Republican Committee, filed Wednesday for his party's nomination for state representative from the newly drawn 46th district. The district includes Saline and parts of Pettis and Cooper Counties.

Weber, a candidate for the state legislature two years ago, charged "the machine-controlled politics of the present state administration has brought us nothing but scandal, mismanagement and waste." He sounded an optimistic note for participatory politics calling for a return of "the voice of the taxpayer...to state government." He also urged the election of a Republican governor "and a Republican majority in the House of Representatives to back him up."

Observing "a national study" which ranked Missouri's legislature 35th in overall effectiveness and 49th in independence from the governor, Weber asserted "that means lobbyists and the chief executive presently have more influence on the legislators than the people do." He pledged a positive approach to state problems emphasizing his discontent with "special interest legislation and misplaced spending priorities."

Weber, born and raised in Saline County, is a 1949 graduate of Marshall High School and attended the University of Missouri. He served in the United States Air Force before returning to Marshall to farm. He was appointed to President Nixon's Agriculture and Food Committee and the Agri-Business Advisory Council. Weber and his wife Lois have two sons and are active in the Redeemer Lutheran Church.

Optimistic On Financing Buena Vista

The board of trustees of the Buena Vista Nursing Home met Thursday, and heard President John Ryan give an optimistic report about the home's future financing.

Ryan said he saw "no reason" why the home couldn't continue to operate with county support. He said the county judges had been "very, very cooperative" in helping the home meet expenses.

The county court makes up the deficit of Buena Vista on a monthly basis. Last month that amounted to $800, Ryan said.

Ryan reported that the road and bridge into Buena Vista had been repaired by the 12-Mile Special Road District. He said Howard Construction Co. had provided the chat for the road free of charge. The interior of the nursing home was recently painted with materials provided at no cost by Dugan Paints and Cramer Construction, Ryan said. Appreciation was also expressed for an Angus bull donated to the home by Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Thompson.

The board granted a leave of absense to Mrs. Edwin Danforth, Buena Vista supervisor. Mrs. Danforth is scheduled to have surgery.

Nelson Man Is Killed In Accident

A Nelson, Mo., man was killed and a Warsaw man injured in two separate accidents in Cooper County Thursday evening and early Friday.

Pronounced dead at the Cooper County Hospital in Boonville was William L. Mason, 44, Nelson, after his pickup truck apparently ran into the rear of a tractor-trailer unit on I-70 at 12:04 a.m. Friday.

Injured was Johnnie Ray Thomas, 35, whose 1966 Ford pickup truck left Highway 50, .2 of a mile west of Highway 135, travelled 201 feet down an embankment and ran into a tree at 6:30 p.m. Thursday. He was taken to Bothwell Hospital by ambulance, treated and released.

In the fatal accident, the Highway Patrol reported that Mason's pickup was headed west on I-70 when it collided with a 1970 Mack tractor-trailer unit driven by Linus Adolph Brazeltown, 54, Kansas City. The impact was so great the two vehicles apparently were welded together and travelled along the highway for 177 feet before Brazeltown could stop his vehicle.

Mason was pronounced dead on arrival at Cooper County Hospital.

The Highway Patrol said it had not determined why the pickup driven west on Highway 50 by Thomas left the road. It was reported, however, that no other vehicles were involved. The pickup, which overturned on its side after hitting the tree, sustained major damage.

Two Charges Against Man In Incident

Eddie Terry, 23, 334 West Saline, was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct and resisting arrest following a disturbance at 334 West Saline at 7:15 p.m. Thursday which resulted in Terry being treated at Bothwell Hospital after he ran his arm through a storm door.

In police court Tuesday Terry pleaded guilty to both charges and was fined $20 and sentenced to 20 days in jail by police court judge Lawrence Englund.

According to police, officers Larry Farrens and Norman Riddle arrested Terry for disorderly conduct after Terry's wife reported he had been beating her. Terry was uncooperative, said Farrens, and began fighting with policemen.

Terry cut his forearm and fingers on his right hand after he bolted away from Farrens and Riddle and shoved his arm through the glass in a storm door while trying to open the door, according to police.

Terry finally had to be subdued with a night stick, said a department spokesman, after he hit Farrens and attempted to hit Riddle as officers tried to hand-cuff him outside the housing project. Virgil Frazier, an off duty policeman, assisted Farren and Riddle, according to police.

Terry was taken to Bothwell where he first refused treatment. He was then taken to the police department where he was booked before being taken to the hospital once again.

A hospital spokesman said Terry was treated for serious lacerations to the right forearm and fingers on the right hand and released.

Commando Effort Is Successful But Costly

SAIGON (AP) — An allied commando team snatched two U.S. airmen from the middle of a North Vietnamese invasion force, but the operation cost the lives of seven other Americans and used giant B52 bombers as decoys, U.S. sources disclosed today.

Despite a broken arm, a sprained back, lack of food and water and 53 years of age, Lt. Col. Iceal E. Hambleton managed for 11 days to evade North Vietnamese troops swarming across the demilitarized zone and sometimes coming within a few feet of him.

Hambleton was a navigator aboard an EB66, a modified bomber being used to jam North Vietnamese radar sites. The plane was hit by a missile April 2 just above the DMZ and Hambleton bailed out, landing just on the South Vietnamese side of the border. The other five men aboard the plane are listed as missing.

The other man rescued, Lt. Mark N. Clark of Los Angeles, was shot down April 3 in an OV10 spotter plane while participating in the search for Hambleton. Clark's copilot is missing and presumed dead.

A Super Jolly Green Giant helicopter was shot down April 6 during the search for the missing men, and all six of its crewmen were killed. Clark was rescued April 11 and Hambleton two days later, but meanwhile two other planes not connected with the search were shot down in the same area and their four crewmen were missing. The U.S. Command would not allow disclosure of the rescue of Hambleton and Clark until today, after the search for those four men was abandoned.

Both Clark and Hambleton were snatched from behind enemy lines in the Dong Ha area just below the DMZ by a volunteer team of South Vietnamese commandos led by U.S. Navy Lt. Tom Norris.

Informed sources said the team used secret techniques which they were not at liberty to disclose. But they reported that Hambleton was taken out by sampan and floated downriver until the South Vietnamese lines were reached.

Norris said Hambleton used a pocket radio and continued to call in air strikes against enemy forces despite his injuries and weakened condition.

When the commando team reached him at midnight, he could not walk and was barely able to crawl to a nearby stream to wash his face.

Norris said the team was spotted by three North Vietnamese but managed to evade them. The Vietnamese members of the patrol said they made an all night sampan ride through enemy lines within sight of North Vietnamese tanks and troops to reach Hambleton.

The commando team and Hambleton made it back to a South Vietnamese tank unit just after dawn. He was flown to a hospital in Da Nang.

"Hambleton was surrounded by enemy forces during most of his ordeal," said one officer. "The search and rescue forces made repeated efforts to extract the men with no success. One problem was that they were caught in the North Vietnamese invasion across the DMZ. The enemy was passing through the area and it couldn't have been worse. Many times the enemy search teams were within five feet."

The B52s made several raids in efforts to divert North Vietnamese troops away from the two downed airmen. It was the first time the eight-engine Stratofortresses were reported used in a rescue effort.

Officers said that in addition to the B52s, fighter-bombers and the biggest gunship the U.S. Air Force has, the four-engine, computerized AC130, flew constant cover for the operation.

Hambleton is a native of Rossville, Ill. His wife lives in Tucson, Ariz.

End War Discord Revealed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee are in disagreement over what response they'll make to the order from the Democratic Caucus to pass an end-the-war bill within 30 days.

But Rep. Cornelius E. Gallagher, D-N.J., who heads the Asian-Pacific affairs subcommittee, said a three-month deadline to halt the Indochina war might be "realistic in the light of the President's own timetable."

Gallagher's committee meets early next week.

Gallagher was not proposing a three-month deadline, however, and said he would not back any end-the-war measure in advance of the meeting.

He said the purpose of the meeting is to decide what course of action to take and not necessarily to promptly report out one of well over 100 pending war-halt bills and resolutions.

The resolution approved 144 to 58 by the Democratic Caucus, condemning both renewed U.S. bombing of North Vietnam and Hanoi's invasion of the South, directed the full committee's Democratic members to put out a bill on "promptly setting a date to terminate all U.S. military involvement." But it leaves details up to the committee.

Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis., a senior member, said he believes the committee will settle on a policy statement urging termination of the war but leaving the date up to President Nixon.

Zablocki said no committee bill would "be satisfying to the proponents of this (caucus) resolution."

When asked if it is reasonable to expect subcommittee approval of a war deadline as early as three months away, Gallagher said yes, in light of President Nixon's own timetable.

Impostor Surrender Expected

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A man identified as Wayne G. Farmer was expected to surrender to the Jackson County prosecutor today in connection with impersonation of a physician in Ohio.

Ohio has issued a warrant charging Farmer with larceny of $2,000 by trickery.

Kenneth K. Simon, Farmer's attorney, said he would surrender the man when the warrant arrives here.

David Dowd, prosecutor in Stark County, Ohio, says Farmer posed as Dr. Edward Bradley in taking the job of administrator and medical director of the 200-bed Molly Stark Hospital near Canton, Ohio, March 27. The man left hastily Tuesday after collecting $2,000 of the $29,000-a-year salary, Dowd said.

Federal and state police records in Kansas show that Farmer has served sentences in at least four states. He has been in the Kansas Penitentiary twice—for bigamy in Sedgwick County in 1959, and blackmail in Harvey County in 1962.

He was sent to the U.S. Penitentiary at Terre Haute, Ind., May 21, 1964, to begin a five-year term for using the mails to defraud. Earlier, he was in the federal reformatory at Chillicothe, Ohio, in 1956 and in a federal institution at Tallahassee, Fla., in 1958 for impersonating an Air Force officer and carrying forged securities.

Dowd said the man claimed to own nursing homes in Kansas City and Detroit.

The Missouri Health Division has licensed Wayne and Elvira Farmer as operators of the Northeast Rest Home in Kansas City.

Mrs. Karen Osborne, health division nurse assigned to inspect the home, said they "seem to be doing a good job." She described Farmer as "a very nice man."

The real Dr. Edward Bradley, who practices medicine in a Saginaw, Mich., hospital, recalled Farmer as a former assistant administrator, and said, "He was really a fine man."

Moon Geologists Describe Surface

By BILL STOCKTON
AP Science Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — If anyone thought it was a Navy fighter pilot and an Air Force jet jockey who landed on the moon Thursday, John W. Young set the record straight with his first words from the lunar surface.

"Well, we won't have to go far to pick up the rocks," he said.

For more than a year Young and Charles M. Duke Jr. trained for the few hours on the moon that would initiate them into mankind's most exclusive geology club. The Apollo 16 astronauts lived and breathed rocks.

They journeyed to New Mexico's Rio Grande Gorge, Arizona's Grand Canyon, Mauna Loa volcano in Hawaii and a crater in Nevada carved by a nuclear blast.

So they were ready at the Descartes highlands with the precise descriptive language born of the skillful observation they'd been taught to use.

"There's a ridge in front of us. One to the side of us" Duke said.

"This ridge in front of us does look like a subdued crater. It has a raised rim about 50 meters in front of us and about four or five meters tall. About 30 or 40 per cent of it looks like it is covered with boulders that are maybe half a meter in size ..."

"Just a minute, Charlie" Mission Control interrupted, bringing the attention of the excited lunar geologists back to the critical business of readying Orion for the lunar stay.

"We got a stay, Houston?" Duke asked, worrying that unnoticed problems might force Orion's two-man crew to leave the moon and prevent it from poking among those beckoning rocks.

"Orion you're stay ..." came the reply.

Young took up the scientific dialogue:

"The way these blocks are laid in here out my window I can see they look like they come from South Main (a major nearby crater). There's some biggies out there. Right out in front of us about a hundred meters in the 10:30 position I've got one that must be three meters across ..."

"You've never seen so many rocks, some biggies too," Duke said.

"Wait until you see the rocks in this place. It's enough to make a geophysicist sit up and crow," Young said.

The exuberant descriptions flowed until Mission Control once more reminded the crew of the business at hand.

"If you can tear yourself away from the window we'd like you to hold yourselves to the schedule," a capsule communicator said.

Moon View Is Clouded But Happy

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Dottie Duke stood outside in the glow of an illuminated American flag, peered up into the darkness and asked:

"Is it up there? ... Is it cloudy?"

Then, with a wistful smile, she added, "Phooey! It's cloudy. I was going to come out and look at it. It was so pretty last night."

The object of her attention was the moon, or, as it turned out, the lack thereof.

Shortly before an appearance outside her home she listened with friends and relatives as her astronaut husband, Charles M. Duke Jr., and Apollo 16 commander John W. Young flew the moonship Orion belatedly to the cratered lunar surface.

An engine malfunction on the command ship threatened America's fifth moon landing and eventually delayed the touchdown nearly six hours.

"They weren't in any danger," Mrs. Duke said. "I wanted them to land. I was all 'go' for landing."

She did admit to a few apprehensions as the space agency engineers worked feverishly to isolate and correct the problem.

"I'll have to admit I was a little uptight about it," she smiled, standing barefoot in her front yard against a backdrop of the glittering flag.

"Neighbors made it for Bill Anders for the Apollo 8 flight and we're just kind of passing it around the neighborhood," she said of the flag.

She said her first reaction to the successful landing was "Wow!"

But it was a resounding "Yippee!" that greeted house guests when she came skipping out of a bedroom where she monitored the descent of the landing module.

Murder Conviction In Fatal Shooting

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) — Richard Paul Anderson, 31, of St. Louis, has been convicted of second-degree murder for the July 1967 fatal shooting of a woman in St. Louis County.

A Circuit Court jury recommended Anderson be sentenced to 60 years in prison after the conviction Thursday. The judge said he will impose sentence after post trial motions are filed.

Anderson was charged with the killing of Mrs. Elbert Fisk at her home in Mattesse. Mrs. Fisk and her husband were shot to death.

The state had charged Anderson with first-degree murder and sought the death penalty.

Six Killed In Traffic Accidents

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Missouri recorded three traffic deaths within a span of less than 40-minutes early today.

The victims were Darrell Ryan, 31, of Bolivar, Mo., William L. Webb, 39, of Bethany, Mo., and William L. Mason, 44, of Nelson, Mo.

Ryan was alone in a car that crossed the median and struck a tractor-trailer truck headon on Interstate 44 at National Street in Springfield.

Webb was killed when his vehicle struck a bridge on U.S. highway 69 about five miles south of Bethany and another car crashed into the wreckage.

The driver of the other car, Craig L. Eckhart, 26, of Wichita, Kan., his wife, Janet, 26, and a daughter, Lori, 4, were injured and hospitalized at Bethany.

Mason died when his auto slammed into the rear of a tractor-trailer truck on Interstate 70 in Cooper County.

Francis Matlock, 71, of Rives, Mo., died about two hours after a three-car smashup two miles south of Kennett. She was riding with her husband, Charles, 81.

Helen Arnold, 69, of Stockton, Ill., was killed on U.S. 67 seven miles south of Bonne Terre. A car driven by her husband, Orren Arnold, 69, was hit broadside by another car, the highway patrol said.

A car-truck collision in the north part of Kansas City killed Johnnie Ray Roberts, 16, of Kansas City. The car was torn in half.

Residence Is Stolen

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — What once was a tiny pink cinderblock house sitting at 1516 Levy St. in a quiet, modest neighborhood here is no more. Somebody stole it.

"Everyone I tell starts laughing like hell," says Dr. Frank Banghart, who owned it.

"No telling where to look," adds Chief Deputy Ken Garrett. "Your guess is as good as mine."

The best clues to the theft have come from a property owner next door.

"They did a good job," said Mareesa Carpenter, discussing the two men and a teen-aged boy who carried the house away piece by piece. "They took everything that was usable and loaded it on the truck."

Mrs. Carpenter said the three drove up to the home site a couple of weekends in a row They would spend Saturdays and Sunday afternoons sawing and slamming away with sledge hammers and then disappear.

She said she assumed the men were the owners clearing the property for other use.

Banghart, a professor of education administration at Florida State University, said he bought the 25-by-40 foot dwelling a month ago for $11,000 with intentions of using it as rental property.

Deputies said it disappeared sometime between April 1 and April 17.

Banghart said he doesn't know whether the loss will be covered by insurance.

"There's some rubble, but most is gone—roof, wiring, plumbing fixtures, even the front door," Banghart lamented. "All gone."

Space Shuttle Victory Noted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bipartisan boost has lifted President Nixon's space-shuttle plan to its first victory in Congress.

After killing a move to delay development of a reusable shuttle for roundtrip manned space flights, the House voted 277 to 60 Thursday to authorize a $3.43-billion space-agency budget.

The bill was sent to the Senate, where it faces similar opposition.

Denouncing efforts to hike space spending "at a time of growing financial crisis," Rep. H.R. Gross, R-Iowa, said: "It's nice to send men to the moon, but this is not going to buy bacon and beans in this country. I went through one depression ... and I don't want to go through another."

But Majority Leader Hale Boggs, D-La., and Minority Leader Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., applauded the space program's achievements and said provisions for moving forward with shuttle development during the fiscal year starting July 1 envision economic operations in the future.

In an effort to strike $200 million contained in the budget for space-shuttle development, Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., questioned the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's cost estimate. NASA figures developing a shuttle will cost $5.15 billion over six years. Aspin termed that "squishy soft" and said it could run to $35 billion.

Rep. Louis Frey Jr., R-Fla., a leader of the pro-shuttle forces, claimed Aspin's amendment to defer development for a one-year study by the National Academy of Sciences would kill the shuttle, wrecking the space program in the process.

"If you want a space program," said Rep. Olin E. Teague, D-Tex., "the shuttle is the program we should buy. If we cut out the shuttle, we don't have a space program."

Aspin's proposal then died, 103 to 11.

The budget also contains $27.9 million for building shuttle facilities at Cape Kennedy, Fla., and Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.

By voice vote, the House rejected a liberal-backed move by blacks to delete $2.5 million in funds for continued operation of the NASA tracking station at Johannesburg, South Africa.

Rep. Charles B. Rangel, D-N.Y., a member of the Black Caucus, said Congress "should end funding for this South African operation where apartheid and racial discrimination are established policies."

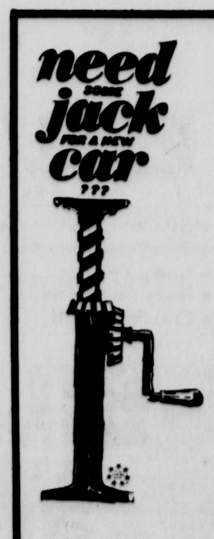

The bill is nearly $50 million over Nixon's request, with most of the boost earmarked for research in cutting jet noise. The agency sought $3.38 billion, $81 million more than it got for the current fiscal year.

Man Is Trapped In Burning Home

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Marcellus Ford, 63, a retired garage mechanic, died in a fire at his home Thursday night after he was trapped on the second floor by flames and smoke.

William Kelly, battalion fire chief, said the fire started in wiring in a kitchen pantry.

Enshrine Six Oldtimers

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — The talk here Thursday, was about the days when the ball was lumpy and the hoop looked like a real basket.

The occasion was the enshrinement of six of basketball's great oldtimers in the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame.

It was a day for reunions and reminiscence and prompted National Basketball Association Commissioner Walter Kennedy to tell the oldtimers, "guys who couldn't even shine your shoes are trying to run this game today."

Enshrined into the hall of fame, located on the Springfield college campus, were: the late Edgar A. Diddle, coach at Western Kentucky for 42 years, ranking fourth in all-time college wins; Robert L. Douglas, 87, the coach and owner of the Renaissance Negro basketball team; Paul Endacott, 70, a star at the University of Kansas; Max (Marty) Friedman, 82, a standout in the early professional leagues; Edward Gottlieb, former owner of the Philadelphia Warriors and Clifford Wells, 76, the former coach at Tulane University and the first executive director of the Hall of Fame.

At the enshrinement dinner, UCLA Coach John Wooden received a special honor, never before awarded any sports figure. He was inducted into the Hall of Fame for the second time. He is already recognized as a player at Purdue University. But because of his unprecedented accomplishments as a coach, including six straight national championships at UCLA and eight in the last nine years, the hall of fame directors voted him dual recognition.

In other presentations, the France Pomeroy award to the nation's outstanding college player six feet or under went to Scott Martin of the University of Oklahoma, and the Lapchick trophy from "Basketball News" magazine went to Travis Grant of Kentucky State as the top senior college player of the year.

Kennedy later told newsmen he was referring to owners, general managers, coaches and players in his criticism of newcomers who are trying to run the game today. He said, in contrast, "the Bob Douglases, the Johnny Woodens, and the Adolph Rupps have given a lifetime to basketball."

CMC Baseball

Baseballers Try Again

"Weather has got to be leading the league," said Smith-Cotton baseball coach 'Skip' Schulz Thursday.

And, he may be right.

With every schedule in the Central Missouri Conference looking like bridge scorecards because of so many changes due to the weather, Smith-Cotton and Hannibal will try to work in a loop doubleheader in between the rain drops Saturday at 1 p.m.

The Tigers have played only one of their scheduled three contests so far this week. A conference twinbill with Columbia at Liberty Park Stadium scheduled for Wednesday had to be reset for May 6, after a mid-afternoon downpour washed out the games.

Smith-Cotton trails Columbia in the CMC standings with a 3-1 mark and could gain valuable ground on the undefeated Kewpies (2-0) with a pair of wins in Hannibal Saturday.

Columbia was scheduled to play Mexico in Columbia Friday afternoon in the only other league action over the weekend.

In non-conference action, Jefferson City has a single game slated in Ashland Friday afternoon.

Mike Arnold and Paul Kostopolus, who were to draw the starting nods against the Kewpies Wednesday afternoon, will probably be on the hill for the Tigers in Hannibal.

The Pirates, along with Mexico were still looking for their first win in league action. Both are 0-2.

Following Saturday's action, S-C will play in the Missouri State High School Activities Association's sub-district baseball playoffs, which opens Monday in Liberty Park Stadium.

The Tigers drew a first-round bye and will take on the winner of the Green Ridge-Windsor contest, Wednesday at 3:30 p.m.

Two Basketball Camps Scheduled This Summer

The athletic department of State Fair Community College announced Friday that it will conduct a two-week summer basketball camp at the Agriculture Building on the Missouri State Fairgrounds.

There will be two one-week sessions. The first is scheduled for June 5-9, and the second set for June 12-16.

Bill Barton, head basketball coach at the Pettis-Benton County junior college, will be in charge of the sessions. Many area high school coaches are also scheduled to help conduct the sessions, giving each player enrolled as much individual help as possible.

The cost for the camp will be $15 for a one-week session, and $25 for both.

The camp is designed for boys between the ages of 11 through 15.

Stanley Cup Play

N.Y. Goes 2-0; Blues Rocked

NEW YORK (AP) — Walter Tkaczuk's nose travels an interesting route on his face, going from here to there and back to here again. It is the nose of a hockey player and right now, one of the New York Rangers' very best hockey players.

It was Tkaczuk who set up Bruce MacGregor's short-handed goal Thursday night in New York's 3-2 victory over Chicago—a triumph that gave the Rangers a commanding 3-0 edge in their best-of-seven National Hockey League Stanley Cup semifinals against the Black Hawks.

Boston also grabbed another victory in its quest of the finals as it dumped St. Louis 10-2 for a 2-0 lead in their semifinal playoff series.

Tkaczuk was all over the ice, killing penalties, forechecking furiously and was clearly the dominant force behind the Rangers' victory. "He smells the money," suggested Vic Hadfield, captain of the Rangers. "With this nose," replied Tkaczuk, "I ought to be able to smell something, eh."

Tkaczuk was out killing a second period penalty to Glen Sather when he smelled out the puck. And that was the turning point for the Rangers. Chicago goalie Gary Smith had gone after the loose puck and suddenly, Tkaczuk was bearing down on him.

"I was moving back and forth, trying to mix him up," said the Ranger center. He must have succeeded in confusing somebody.

Smith threw the puck to his right, away from Tkaczuk and towards Pat Stapleton and Pit Martin. They weren't exactly ready for the rubber, but Tkaczuk was.

"It slipped off a stick—I think Stapleton's," said Tkaczuk, "and it came right to me."

Smith had been slow getting back to the net and when Tkaczuk threw the rubber to MacGregor, the right wing had nothing but net to shoot at. He didn't miss.

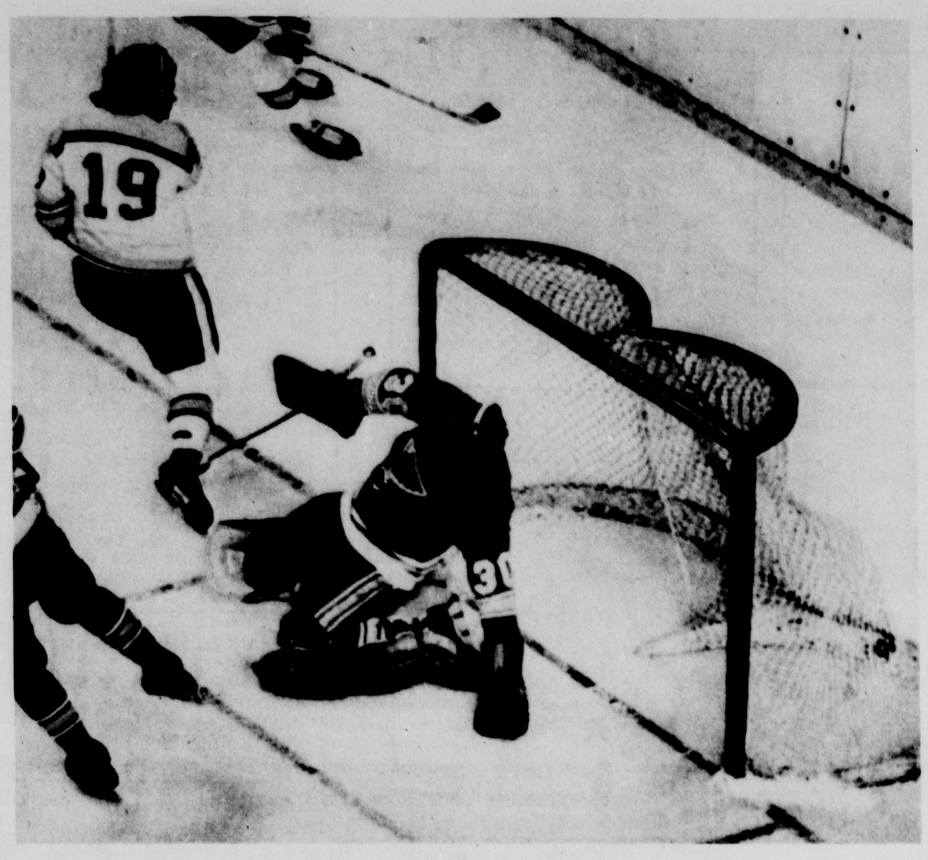

That gave the Rangers a 2-1 lead and left Chicago Coach Billy Reay fuming.

"The key was that they scored a shorthanded goal," said Reay, "and that's just terrible. They shouldn't do that to us."

Dennis Hull's second score of the night following MacGregor's short-handed goal had tied it again before Dale Rolfe gave the Rangers the lead for keeps.

Boston got a three-goal performance from 36-year-old Johnny Buyck. It was his second hat trick in playoff action. The Bruins also used two scores from Eddie Westfall and one apiece from Phil Esposito, Ace Bailey, John McKenzie, Mike Walton and Don Marcotte in giving the Blues their second serious defeat. Boston beat St. Louis 6-1 in the first game of the series.

The Blues broke Boston goalie Gerry Cheevers' bid for a shutout in the third period with a score by Mike Murphy. Teammate Phil Roberto scored the other St. Louis goal. Their semifinals resume in St. Louis Sunday with the third game.

Beginning of the End

Boston's John McKenzie (19) screens Blues' goalie Jacques Caron perfectly as Boston teammate John Bucyk (not pictured) scores the first goal of a 10-goal spree that sent the Blues rocking to a 10-2 defeat, Thursday night, in Stanley Cup Playoff action. (UPI)

Sparky Stalcup Dead

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Wilbur (Sparky) Stalcup, 62, athletic director at the University of Missouri and coach of basketball at MU from 1946-61, died early today in Boone County Hospital.

Stalcup had been hospitalized since April 9 when he suffered an apparent heart attack. He was moved from intensive care only this week and, authorities said, suffered another apparent attack Thursday afternoon.

Mulkey Sets Record

LAWRENCE, Kan. — Phil Mulkey, 40, of Birmingham, Ala., established a record here Thursday in the masters decathlon of the Kansas Relays with a total of 5,683 points. That broke the old record held by Brayton Norton of Santa Clara, Calif.

Greg Hill captured the university division decathlon with a total of 7,530 points. The Oklahoma Christian College senior finished ahead of Mike Wedman, Colorado; Bruce Jenner, Graceland (Iowa) College; and Don Allbritton, Northeast Missouri State.

Randy Heierding of Oklahoma University, came within 10 seconds of tying the Kansas Relays' record in the six-mile run. He was clocked at 28:52.6 in winning the event.

KC Pair Takes Lead

KANSAS CITY (AP) — New doubles leaders appeared in two divisions of the Women's International Bowling Congress Thursday.

Artice Kramer and Ruth Wilk of Kansas City rolled 1,187 for the Open Division doubles lead, while Rogena Buol of Burlington, Colo., and Peg Rauenbuehler of Longmont, Colo., took over first place in Division I with 1,166.

Mrs. Wilk and Mrs. Kramer were 36 pins better than the former open leaders, Jean Steakley and Pam Meredith of Wichita, Kan.

Mrs. Wilk, who had a 622 doubles pinfall, also grabbed fourth place in the Open All-events.

Mrs. Buol and Mrs. Rauenbuehler, who are cousins, had a 21-pin edge over the former Division I doubles leaders, Doris Ferris and Lorraine Fullner of Norfolk, Neb.

Jerry Baker, 45-year-old bowling instructor from Grove City, Ohio, rolled the top series of the tourney, a 653, as she combined with Barbara Mercure of Columbus, Ohio, for second place in the Open doubles with 1,179.

Green, Dickinson

Two Share Lead

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — Hubert Green walked up to the ninth green at the long, tough La Costa Country Club golf course clapping his hands about a short iron shot that left him a four-foot putt for a birdie.

"Well, I was pretty proud of the shot and I thought it deserved to be applauded," he said with an Alabama drawl.

Green combined enough of those good shots with his strange putting style Thursday to share the first-round lead with Gardner Dickinson in the $165,000 Tournament of Champions.

Dickinson, 44, and Green, 25, fired four-under-par 68s for a two-stroke advantage over defending champion Jack Nicklaus, Bruce Crampton and Jerry Heard.

Nicklaus hit all 18 greens but needed 35 putts to stay among the leaders in this elite field of 26 players who have scored regular tour victories in the last 12 months.

Arnold Palmer and Lee Trevino had their troubles with the deep, clinging rough that makes this one of the most demanding courses on the pro tour.

Trevino never really got it going. He finished with a string of four consecutive fives on his card for 75. Palmer, who shot a 74, had the makings of a decent round until he bogeyed the 17th from the rough, the took a double bogey six on the 18th when he almost lost his tee shot in the foot-high grass.

Someone asked Green, a tour sophomore who hasn't played well since winning the Houston Champions International last year, if he were talking to himself on the course.

"I'll talk to anybody, he quipped. "The only thing is, when I'm playing there's nobody out there to watch me and nobody to talk to."

Green uses an unorthodox putting style, crouching far over, his feet well spread and his hands about four inches apart on the club.

But he needed only 27 putts.

THOMAS IN BULLPEN

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Lee Thomas will return to the St. Louis Cardinals this season as the team's batting practice pitcher and bullpen coach.

Thomas, 36, played for the Yankees, Angels, Red Sox, Braves, Cubs and Astros during eight seasons in the major leagues. In 1962 he had his best year, hitting .290 with 26 home runs and 104 runs batted in for the California Angels.

Fishin' Report

Lakes, Ponds Best Spots

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Lake and pond fishing promises anglers the best fishing in Missouri since statewide rainfall the past week has muddied up most streams.

Lakes are in good condition, and the State Conservation Department reports big bass catches from lakes and farm pounds are giving anglers top action.

Trout areas are all dingy and high and trout fishing only fair.

Conditions by stream:

Grand—Upper river clear and low; channel cat fair, some carp and drum being taken. Lower river dingy, channel cat fair to good.

Resume Playoff Series

NEW YORK (AP) — New York struck out on Boston's fast ball, and if the Knicks want to stay in the game they're going to have to go slow.

Player-philosopher Bill Bradley was analyzing the sticky status of the National Basketball Association semifinal series which the Celtics could tie tonight if the Knicks fall into their trap again.

The Knicks, who took command of the best-of-seven series 2-0 by setting their own pace, lost game No. 3 because they ran to the Celtics' rhythm.

"They were able to up the tempo of the game," said Bradley. "We were able to keep up with them in the third quarter, but then they started hitting and we started missing."

"That's what happens in a fast game."

The defending champion Milwaukee Bucks will attempt to stay in the semifinals Saturday with a home court victory over Los Angeles, which leads that best-of-7 series 3-2.

In the American Basketball Association West Finals, the Utah Stars take a 2-1 lead to Bloomington, Ind., against the Pacers Saturday night. The Pacers were bounced from their home in the State Fairgrounds Coliseum at Indianapolis by a circus.

In the ABA East, the Virginia Squires, with a 2-0 edge over the New York Nets, twiddle their thumbs awaiting a Monday meeting in Uniondale, N.Y., after a nine-delay because of an ice show at the Nets' new Nassau Coliseum home.

Plans on Moving Tourist Facilities

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The owner of two tourist boats on the city's Mississippi riverfront says he plans to move them near the Earth City residential development on the Missouri River in west St. Louis County.

Frank Pierson, owner of the Goldenrod Showboat, said Thursday he wants to move the boat as soon as his application for a permit is approved by the Army Corps of Engineers.

Pierson said he also plans to move the floating restaurant Becky Thatcher and a landing barge to a dike near Earth City.

The project is being constructed on the Missouri River bottomland to the north of I-70 near St. Charles, Mo. Earth City is expected to be completed in about seven years.

Nisslake Meets Press

Tom Nisslake, former coach of the Dallas Chapparels of the American Basketball Association, talks to members of the press at a news conference in Seattle Thursday. Nisslake will take over the leadership of the Seattle SuperSonics next season. He reportedly received a multi-year contract. He takes over the coaching duties from Lenny Wilkens, who quit as the Sonics' coach at the completion of the 1971-72 season. Wilkens will, however, stay on as a player. Nelson Files Tentative Entry for USAC Race

Norm Nelson, owner of Nelson Racing Team Plymouths out of Racine, Wis., has filed for the April 30 United States Auto Club stock car "Race of Champions" at the Missouri State Fairgrounds.

Nelson, who teams with two-time USAC stock car champion Roger McCluskey of Tucson, Ariz., in the Plymouth duo, captured 11th place in the drivers points standings in 1971.

However, the Nelson team captured second in the owner points standings with 3,173.00 combined points from the finishes of himself and McCluskey. McCluskey captured third in the driver points standings.

According to the entry, Nelson did not know whether he or McCluskey would drive the car, or which of the two cars would be used.

Reportedly, Nelson, who is second on the all-time USAC stock car points list, has had trouble getting his two cars ready for the current season.

Nelson won the USAC stock championship in 1960, 1965 and 1966. He has finished in the runner-up position on three other occasions — 1961, 1964 and 1970.

In the owners division, Nelson has finished at the top six times since 1963.

The 49-year-old veteran has posted 34 wins in the USAC stock car divisions, including a victory in last year's Kaukauna, Wis., 100-miler on May 23.

Norm Nelson

Other recent entries include last year's runner-up in the overall USAC stock car points standings, Jack Bowsher of Springfield, Ohio.

Brother Tom Bowsher, also from Springfield, Ohio, plans to run in the race on the Fairgrounds' half-mile dirt track. However, he is still working on his entry and he does not know if the car will be completed in time.

In addition to the Bowsher brother act, Gordon Blankenship, the younger brother of Lem Blankenship, has filed an entry.

The former Blankenship has been a regular on the International Motor Contest Association stock car trail in recent years. Both Blankenships hail from Keokuk, Iowa, the stock car racing mecca of the Midwest.

Verlin Eaker, who captured eighth place in the stock car division in 1971 on the strength of a win at the DuQuion, Ill., State Fair, has entered his 1970 Dodge Challenger.

The ticket office in front of the grandstand on the Fairgrounds will open Monday. The center will be open 2-7 p.m. April 24-28.

Tickets will again go on sale April 29, as well as the day of the race.

$4.8 Million Damage Suit Filed Here

A $4.8 million, four-count malpractice suit was filed in Pettis County Circuit Court Friday on a change of venue from Cole County Circuit Court.

Plaintiffs in the action are Emma G. Tussey and Jacob Q. Tussey, Route 2, Fulton, who claim negligence by Dr. R. A. Osbourn and Dr. James K. Ritterbusch, Fulton, and Dr. Fred P. Handler, a Jefferson City pathologist.

The three defendants claimed in their April 6 motion for a change of venue that residents of Cole County were prejudiced in the case and that they could not receive a fair trial there.

Emma Tussey charges in the first count of the second amended petition in the suit that due to alleged negligence by Drs. Osbourn, Ritterbusch and Handler she has suffered extreme anguish and pain and that her ability to earn a livelihood with her husband in their Fulton antique store has been completely destroyed. She asks $1.7 million on that count.

Jacob Tussey charges in count two of the suit that he has lost the services of a business partner and wife, and that his wife's condition will continue to worsen. He seeks $700,000.

Another $1.7 million is sought in count three by Mrs. Tussey, who alleges that the physicians involved were aware of a malignant tumor but concealed that information from her and charged three instances of assault and battery against Osbourn and Ritterbusch for subsequent treatment she claims complicated and worsened her health. Her husband seeks $700,000 in count four due to the alleged concealment action by Osbourn and Ritterbusch.

The suit stems from a Dec. 27, 1968 subtotal hysterectomy allegedly performed by Osbourn and Ritterbusch on Mrs. Tussey at Callaway Memorial Hospital, Fulton, to treat discharges of blood. The suit alleges Handler was sent a tissue sample of Mrs. Tussey in April, 1969, after the bleeding failed to stop. Her cervix was reportedly removed later to correct the condition, and was followed by two other surgical procedures to correct a complication of the second operation, she alleges.

Mrs. Tussey sought out treatment at the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., after the fourth surgery, where it was allegedly diagnosed that she had a massive malignant pelvic tumor which had affected several internal organs.

The suit alleges that she has since undergone extensive surgical procedures including two colostomies and removal of several lower abdominal organs. It further alleges such treatment was necessary due to earlier improper treatment administered by Osbourn and Ritterbusch, based on Handler's purported diagnosis of tissue samples, allowing the cancer to grow. Another allegation is that earlier surgery necessitating attempted corrections was done carelessly.

The Tusseys claim in the third and fourth counts of the suit that Drs. Osbourn, Ritterbusch and Handler concealed from them the fact that a March, 1970, diagnosis allegedly revealed a malignant cancer, a fact the Tusseys claim they did not find out until their attorneys obtained her hospital records in November, 1970.

Circuit Court Clerk Bill Lyles said a trial date for the case probably wouldn't be set until the September term of court.

Government Operation A Problem

The second "Goals for Missouri" meeting for Pettis County was held Thursday at the Federal Building, Fourth and Lamine, with four Sedalians and two Show-Me Regional Planning Commission officials present.

The first meeting was held last April 13. "Goals for Missouri" meetings are being held in all regional planning county seats to gather citizens' complaints and suggestions for improvement of services provided by government agencies and for the proper utilization of natural resources.

Frank Schwarzer, Show-Me Regional Planning Commission director, told The Democrat-Capital that those present at Thursday's meeting felt that "not enough people understand the operation of government." They suggested better means of communication between government and people, he said.

Some felt that the tax structure needs to be equalized so the tax burden will not be on any one segment of society, Schwarzer reported.

The group also discussed the need for additional housing in Pettis County, especially for moderate income senior citizens.

Regarding public safety, those present complimented the city and fire departments for their services. They also expressed satisfaction about the operation of the county jail. However, some dissatisfaction was expressed at the frequent changes made in Sedalia's police personnel. Some felt that an improved salary scale might reduce this problem, Schwarzer reported.

Lens Is Stolen

Franklin Rogers, 523 East 13th, a member of the Sedalia Police Department, reported at 12:30 a.m. Friday that someone had stolen a red lens cover from a rotating light mounted on top of squad car 11 while it was parked at LeRoy's Steakhouse, 905 South Limit, early Friday morning. Officers were inside eating supper, the report indicated.

Weber Files To Represent 46th District

George W. (Bud) Weber

George W. (Bud) Weber, 39, Marshall, chairman of the Saline County Republican Committee, filed Wednesday for his party's nomination for state representative from the newly drawn 46th district. The district includes Saline and parts of Pettis and Cooper Counties.

Weber, a candidate for the state legislature two years ago, charged "the machine-controlled politics of the present state administration has brought us nothing but scandal, mismanagement and waste." He sounded an optimistic note for participatory politics calling for a return of "the voice of the taxpayer...to state government." He also urged the election of a Republican governor "and a Republican majority in the House of Representatives to back him up."

Observing "a national study" which ranked Missouri's legislature 35th in overall effectiveness and 49th in independence from the governor, Weber asserted "that means lobbyists and the chief executive presently have more influence on the legislators than the people do." He pledged a positive approach to state problems emphasizing his discontent with "special interest legislation and misplaced spending priorities."

Weber, born and raised in Saline County, is a 1949 graduate of Marshall High School and attended the University of Missouri. He served in the United States Air Force before returning to Marshall to farm. He was appointed to President Nixon's Agriculture and Food Committee and the Agri-Business Advisory Council. Weber and his wife Lois have two sons and are active in the Redeemer Lutheran Church.

Optimistic On Financing Buena Vista

The board of trustees of the Buena Vista Nursing Home met Thursday, and heard President John Ryan give an optimistic report about the home's future financing.

Ryan said he saw "no reason" why the home couldn't continue to operate with county support. He said the county judges had been "very, very cooperative" in helping the home meet expenses.

The county court makes up the deficit of Buena Vista on a monthly basis. Last month that amounted to $800, Ryan said.

Ryan reported that the road and bridge into Buena Vista had been repaired by the 12-Mile Special Road District. He said Howard Construction Co. had provided the chat for the road free of charge. The interior of the nursing home was recently painted with materials provided at no cost by Dugan Paints and Cramer Construction, Ryan said. Appreciation was also expressed for an Angus bull donated to the home by Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Thompson.

The board granted a leave of absense to Mrs. Edwin Danforth, Buena Vista supervisor. Mrs. Danforth is scheduled to have surgery.

Nelson Man Is Killed In Accident

A Nelson, Mo., man was killed and a Warsaw man injured in two separate accidents in Cooper County Thursday evening and early Friday.

Pronounced dead at the Cooper County Hospital in Boonville was William L. Mason, 44, Nelson, after his pickup truck apparently ran into the rear of a tractor-trailer unit on I-70 at 12:04 a.m. Friday.

Injured was Johnnie Ray Thomas, 35, whose 1966 Ford pickup truck left Highway 50, .2 of a mile west of Highway 135, travelled 201 feet down an embankment and ran into a tree at 6:30 p.m. Thursday. He was taken to Bothwell Hospital by ambulance, treated and released.

In the fatal accident, the Highway Patrol reported that Mason's pickup was headed west on I-70 when it collided with a 1970 Mack tractor-trailer unit driven by Linus Adolph Brazeltown, 54, Kansas City. The impact was so great the two vehicles apparently were welded together and travelled along the highway for 177 feet before Brazeltown could stop his vehicle.

Mason was pronounced dead on arrival at Cooper County Hospital.

The Highway Patrol said it had not determined why the pickup driven west on Highway 50 by Thomas left the road. It was reported, however, that no other vehicles were involved. The pickup, which overturned on its side after hitting the tree, sustained major damage.

Two Charges Against Man In Incident

Eddie Terry, 23, 334 West Saline, was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct and resisting arrest following a disturbance at 334 West Saline at 7:15 p.m. Thursday which resulted in Terry being treated at Bothwell Hospital after he ran his arm through a storm door.

In police court Tuesday Terry pleaded guilty to both charges and was fined $20 and sentenced to 20 days in jail by police court judge Lawrence Englund.

According to police, officers Larry Farrens and Norman Riddle arrested Terry for disorderly conduct after Terry's wife reported he had been beating her. Terry was uncooperative, said Farrens, and began fighting with policemen.

Terry cut his forearm and fingers on his right hand after he bolted away from Farrens and Riddle and shoved his arm through the glass in a storm door while trying to open the door, according to police.

Terry finally had to be subdued with a night stick, said a department spokesman, after he hit Farrens and attempted to hit Riddle as officers tried to hand-cuff him outside the housing project. Virgil Frazier, an off duty policeman, assisted Farren and Riddle, according to police.

Terry was taken to Bothwell where he first refused treatment. He was then taken to the police department where he was booked before being taken to the hospital once again.

A hospital spokesman said Terry was treated for serious lacerations to the right forearm and fingers on the right hand and released.

The largest aircraft in wingspan—320 feet—ever built was the eight-engined 200-ton Hughes Hercules flying boat which was flown once in 1947 by Howard Hughes. The World Almanac recalls. It provided innovations in design, construction and control systems which were valuable in building the current generation of giant commercial and military aircraft.

Nixon Sends Good Money After Bad

WASHINGTON — The good poker players live by the rule that you never send good money after bad. When your luck is running cold, you try to cut your losses; you don't keep upping the ante in the hope that a sudden reversal of fortune will enable you to recoup your losses.

Rowan

There can be no doubt that the United States has been in a losing game in Indochina, a point President Nixon must be aware of, since he has spent over two years figuring out how to extricate Uncle Sam before he loses his shirt.

Suddenly, with the bombings at Haiphong and Hanoi and the damaging of four Soviet merchant ships, Mr. Nixon has thrown some mighty big chips on the table.

It is like the poker player who has lost all night asking for a high-stakes hand of "showdown" as the game is breaking up in the desperate hope that he will not go home so big a loser.

Like the poker player, Mr. Nixon is sending good money after bad.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Defense Secretary Melvin Laird have given the public a torrent of words, many of them contradictory, to justify the bombings. They are parties to an administration attempt to win public support by building up anti-Hanoi emotions.

They talk about "this massive invasion from the north," when in fact the Communist "invasion" has been a constant reality for years. Nothing has occurred of such newness or magnitude as to justify steps that run the risk of transforming the war into a direct U.S.-Soviet confrontation.

The administration speaks of retaliation because the North Vietnamese violated "understandings" of 1968, when the bombing halt was ordered by President Johnson, although there is no evidence whatever that Hanoi actually agreed to anything.

The bombings of Hanoi and Haiphong are understandable only as manifestations of a policy of desperation.

Rogers said the bombings were ordered "to prevent a Communist takeover." That is the heart of the truth, despite the fact that it contradicts Laird's glowing testimony about the success of Vietnamization and the performance of South Vietnamese troops.

The administration was worried that the Communists might take over militarily, and that would have been a calamity for Richard Nixon.

He can ill afford to limp into Moscow next month as a man who has just been driven out of South Vietnam, who has just watched the United States suffer her first military humiliation.

Nor can Nixon afford to go before U.S. voters this fall as a man who has seen Vietnamization and the Nixon Doctrine blow up in his face.

Sen. J. William Fulbright interpreted Laird's testimony as a signal that, in reaction to Hanoi's thrust for a military victory, Washington decided it too must go for a battlefield decision. But it is hard to believe that air power alone can produce the decisive victory which was not attainable even when we had 550,000 GIs to back up massive bombings?

No. Those raids on Haiphong and Hanoi were more political than military. They were supposed to intimidate North Vietnamese leaders, and their Soviet and Chinese suppliers, to force them to forget about military victory and accept a settlement that allows Nixon and the U.S. to save some face.

More than seven years of costly bombings and battling have given evidence that the new bombings will only make the North Vietnamese more obdurate than ever.

Now that Mr. Nixon has thrown his blue chips on the table with these bombings, he has paused to see if the cards fall his way. The critical question is what does he do if they don't?

The prospect is that Hanoi will continue this offensive. If they are driven back, or decide to fall back, they very surely will attack again — and again. Has Mr. Nixon committed himself to new bombings of Hanoi or Haiphong every time the Communists heighten their military activity in the south?

Or is he threatening to mine Haiphong harbor and bomb North Vietnam so massively that it will be virtually destroyed as a nation and a war-making power?

The President has raised the stakes to where it is more difficult than ever for Uncle Sam to walk out of the game without a tarnished reputation, a wounded pride. But the alternative seems to be extending the game for years, at a continuing high risk and cost.

The question is whether the American people feel that they or the nation have enough at stake in Indochina to justify this continued participation in the Indochina game when the stakes have been lifted to the level of brinksmanship.

I doubt that the President can convince many Americans that if he stays long enough, with a raise here and a bluff there, Uncle Sam will eventually emerge as the big winner. The President must doubt it, too.

THE SEDALIA DEMOCRAT

The Sedalia Capital

New Irresponsibility From War Critics

By employing massive U.S. air power to help stem the North Vietnamese invasion of the South, President Nixon is utilizing the only military means the U.S. is left with to stave off the threat of collapse in the South.

By roundly condemning even this limited show of force, House and Senate critics of the President's actions are reaching new heights of irresponsibility.

On Thursday the House Democratic Caucus condemned the "dangerous escalation of our role in the Indochina war." (As an afterthought, marvel of all marvels, North Vietnam was also condemned for its invasion of the South.)

The shrill outcries are not limited to the House. On Wednesday Missouri's junior senator, Thomas F. Eagleton, delivered himself of an ill-reasoned speech condemning President Nixon's "raw retaliation," which he views as a "compensation for failure," the "vengeful...wounded pride of a king."

These outraged diatribes contrast sharply with the reasoned, straightforward justification for the air attacks delineated by Secretary of State William P. Rogers, when he testified recently before Sen. J. William Fulbright's Foreign Relations Committee.

Rogers said the U.S. air intervention had three goals:

1. To protect American troops still in South Vietnam.

2. To make certain that the withdrawal of American forces can continue.

3. To give South Vietnam a chance to defend itself against the massive invasion from the North.

Take, for the moment, only the first point. Suppose the 12 divisions North Vietnam committed to the invasion had succeeded to the point that the 85,000 U. S. troops remaining in the South had been cut off, captured, killed or driven, Dunkirk-like, to the sea?

With this possibility, however remote, facing the President, could he have made any other decision?

The administration's goal remains the total withdrawal of U.S. forces from Vietnam as soon as possible, something the war critics have been ceaselessly clamoring for since the mid-60s. Now it is evident that some lawmakers would deny him the means to achieve even this.

Drugs Are 'Payola' In Record Industry

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The turntables of the billion-dollar record industry are lubricated by payola, including bootleg drugs. Corrupt record companies slip marijuana, cocaine, LSD, and other drugs to disc jockeys and radio programmers for promoting "hit" records.

In our March 31 column, we reported that record companies were paying off disc jockeys in the form of cash, cars, concubines and the like. We have now learned that the payola scandals of 1959-60 have grown like rank weeds into a drug scandal of the 1970s.

Informants in the record industry, appalled at what is happening in their jangly world of sound, have come to us with information. We are withholding their names because they fear job reprisals and Mafia enforcers.

In interviews with my associate Les Whitten, and in written statements, they attest to such episodes as these:

✔ A promotion man for a well-known record company bought "plays" for his firm's records from radio station music directors with $20 lots of marijuana. The promotion man complained that it was difficult to find a way to list "pot" on the expense account.

✔ A prominent independent promoter-producer held all-day salons at which he provided assortments of drugs to disc jockeys, performers and station music directors. Our informant attended one such "promotion" session.

✔ An artist promoting his own record agreed to deliver drugs each week to a writer for a record magazine. In talks overheard by our witness, the pills were identified as "different colored 'shirts.'" The "shirts" were pills and the colors "referred to the type of pills to be delivered," said our informant. Not surprisingly, the record zoomed up on the publication's popularity list even though the artist was almost unknown.

So worried about the drug problem is the Recording Industry Association of America (RIAA) that its earnest president, Stanley Gortikov, made private calls in March to record company presidents to demand an end to drug payola.

Determined though he was to take strong action, Gortikov nevertheless wanted to prevent leaks about the drug scandal, so he discreetly read the letter to the executives but never sent them a copy.

We have now persuaded Gortikov to give us the text of his "letter," which describes the depths of the drug problem within the industry.

"Several years ago," wrote Gortikov, a former president of Capitol records, "our industry was fouled by a series of payola inquiries and charges. A repetition of this trauma may be imminent today with even more damaging potential consequences because of the possible involvement of drugs-for-play . . .

"Record representatives have allegedly purchased certain drugs as gifts for radio personnel in exchange for broadcast favors." Gortikov confided to the executives that "I cannot confirm the accuracy of the facts," but he added that "these reports, if true, mirror a reprehensible condition for us all both commercially and morally.

"Such practices and their inevitable revelations invite repercussions that our industry can ill afford — government investigations, imposition of outside rules and standards, loss of imagery and credibility, financial penalty and personal disasters for individuals."

Gortikov demanded "immediate and imperative action" against "any form of pay-for-play" which he called "unconscionable, immoral and commercially self-destructive."

The veteran industry leader went so far as to urge the record companies to conduct investigations and surveillances to root out those dealing in payola among their own employes and among independent operators working as outside promoters, distributors and producers.

"The foregoing plan is stringent," said Gortikov, "but we have much at stake."

Gortikov's appeal is too recent to show any real results, but our investigation has shown that most record company officials prefer to remain in the dark about how their records are peddled.

We have learned that drug-for-play promotion men buy dope in broker's lots, charging off the cost to "routine promotion expenses." They deal mainly in marijuana, although insiders have repeatedly told us cocaine is the "with it" drug this year in show biz.

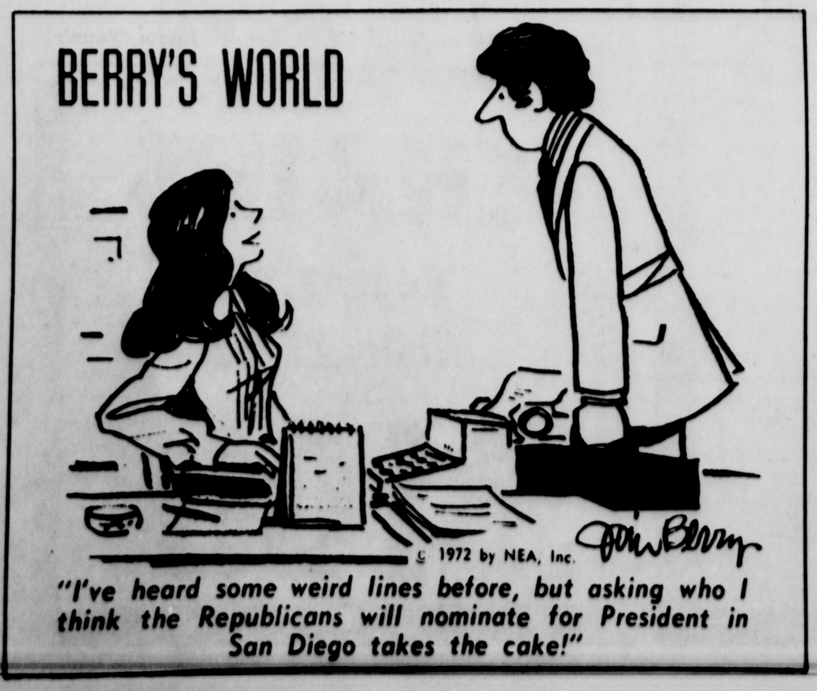

In fairness to the record industry, while payola appears to be epidemic, the drug payola is apparently limited to only a few record companies and radio stations. It is particularly insidious since it fosters the narcotics traffic that poisons the industry's own youthful record customers.

Footnote: Federal Communications Commission chairman Dean Burch has assured us that the FCC will investigate the payola scandal. In his letter to us he asked for leads on payola suspects in the industry. We have offered to provide the names and details, without identifying our informants. As yet, Burch has sent us no reply.

Personal Slants

By DOUG KNEIBERT

The Sedalia dental community has succeeded in refuting an anti-fluoridation ad that ran shortly before the April 4 election, in which it was claimed that "subsidies" were available from the federal government to fluoridate through school milk programs.

In a reply dated April 11, a dentist with the U.S. Public Health Service exposed this phony propaganda for what it is, by pointing out that no such federal funds are available for a very good reason: milk is not a "suitable vehicle" for fluoridation to prevent dental decay.

I also have a copy of a letter from Dr. Jesse V. Westerman, a dentist with the Bureau of Dental Health, Jefferson City, saying the same thing.

Dr. Westerman states that fluoridation is most effective when administered early in life, when the crowns of the permanent teeth are being formed. Since this is accomplished by the time a youngster gets into school, fluoride administered through milk would not provide adequate protection.

Scratch up another example of bum dope put out by those opposed to fluoridation.

And that's not all. Remember that anti-fluoridation ad that offered a $100,000 "reward" for anyone who can offer proof of fluoride's safety? Uncollectible, says the Division of Dental Health of the U.S. Public Health Service.

The offer reads that the reward will be paid "to the first individual who can provide one copy of any controlled experiments with the U.S. Public Health Service recommended parts per million, that shows that poisonous fluorides are . . . safe, beneficial and will cause no future body harms."

The PHS's Division of Dental Health makes these points:

1. It is impossible to conclusively "prove" anything about the future.

2. There is no definition of "controlled" experiment, what proof would be considered acceptable, or who would decide whether the proof is acceptable.

3. "Poisonous fluorides" is a loaded word here. Fluoride is not poisonous at the recommended therapeutic dosage, but can be at much higher dosages.

As a clincher, the ad requires all takers to post a bond to cover any costs which the sponsors of the reward might incur if the proof is deemed invalid. Such an amount would be impossible to determine in advance, and would certainly tend to discourage those otherwise willing to take up the challenge.

The above are a couple of cases in point about the level at which the fluoride question is being fought here in Sedalia.

From the Missouri Tourism Commission comes its April newsletter, with a spread on three promotion ads being placed in newspapers and magazines to lure tourists to the state. One ad reads:

"Water. Over 50,000 acres of it. Wet, clean water. The kind you look for but seldom find. Swim, fish, float, ski. Or whatever. Come on in."

It was an ironic twist that about the same time the newsletter came out, the Missouri Water Pollution Board was investigating the state's biggest fish kill along the south fork of the Salt River near Mexico, where 93,000 gallons of fuel oil from the Kaiser Refractory plant spilled into the river.

An estimated 222,000 fish were killed by the spill, as well as many other forms of aquatic life. It was the worst in a recent series of oil and chemical spills in the state's waterways, which have killed hundreds of thousands of fish and other creatures.

It would indeed be nice if the picture drawn by the Tourism Commission were entirely true. Maybe with the tougher water pollution law recently enacted by the legislature, plus some real crackdowns on polluters instead of wrist-slapping, it will be some day.

Yesterday's Democrat outlined an account of the swindles perpetrated by some lightning rod peddlers along the line of Pettis and Benton counties ... it appears that these men have been engaged in this game throughout the whole southern part of the county, and their victims are numbered by the hundreds ... If they should be found there will be a job for the undertakers, as the farmers are terribly incensed.

This column makes it a policy never to mention the name of a player who makes an unfortunate bid or play, so West will only be identified as one of the best players in New England.

Against South's three no-trump West opened the king of spades. East played the queen and West led the eight of spades to his partner. East returned the jack of hearts.

South resisted the temptation to cover with the queen and just won with dummy's ace. Then he knocked out West's ace of spades. West thought awhile, cashed the king of hearts and South claimed the rest of the tricks.

West promptly pointed out that, if he had just opened a diamond and left spades alone, South would have been held to eight tricks. West apologized to partner.

We feel that West was a trifle hard on himself. Just suppose that he had opened a diamond. South would win and run off five club tricks. West would have to make four discards. Suppose that two of these were hearts. South could play ace and one heart and get his ninth trick. Suppose he threw two diamonds, a heart and a spade. South could go after spades and lose just two spades and two diamonds.

Keep looking. You will find that West could beat the hand by chucking one heart and all three spades. But we doubt that anyone in the world would find that defense.

Stanley Cup Play

N.Y. Goes 2-0; Blues Rocked

NEW YORK (AP) — Walter Tkaczuk's nose travels an interesting route on his face, going from here to there and back to here again. It is the nose of a hockey player and right now, one of the New York Rangers' very best hockey players.

It was Tkaczuk who set up Bruce MacGregor's short-handed goal Thursday night in New York's 3-2 victory over Chicago—a triumph that gave the Rangers a commanding 3-0 edge in their best-of-seven National Hockey League Stanley Cup semifinals against the Black Hawks.

Boston also grabbed another victory in its quest of the finals as it dumped St. Louis 10-2 for a 2-0 lead in their semifinal playoff series.

Tkaczuk was all over the ice, killing penalties, forechecking furiously and was clearly the dominant force behind the Rangers' victory. "He smells the money," suggested Vic Hadfield, captain of the Rangers. "With this nose," replied Tkaczuk, "I ought to be able to smell something, eh."

Tkaczuk was out killing a second period penalty to Glen Sather when he smelled out the puck. And that was the turning point for the Rangers. Chicago goalie Gary Smith had gone after the loose puck and suddenly, Tkaczuk was bearing down on him.

"I was moving back and forth, trying to mix him up," said the Ranger center. He must have succeeded in confusing somebody.

Smith threw the puck to his right, away from Tkaczuk and towards Pat Stapleton and Pit Martin. They weren't exactly ready for the rubber, but Tkaczuk was.

"It slipped off a stick—I think Stapleton's," said Tkaczuk, "and it came right to me."

Smith had been slow getting back to the net and when Tkaczuk threw the rubber to MacGregor, the right wing had nothing but net to shoot at. He didn't miss.

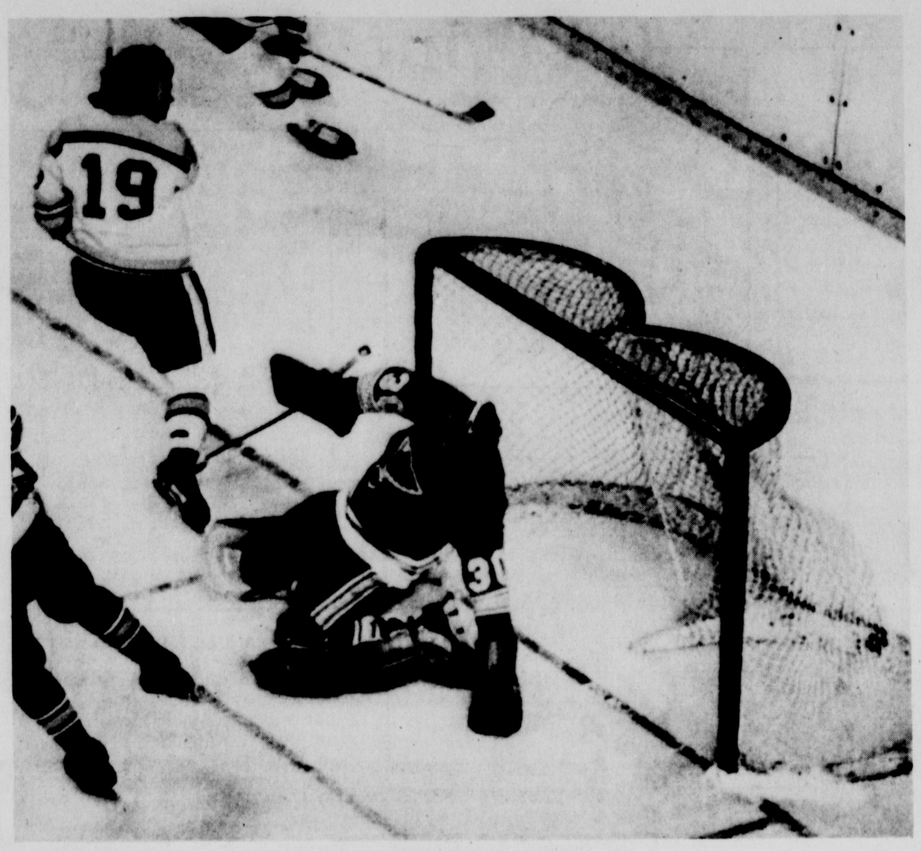

That gave the Rangers a 2-1 lead and left Chicago Coach Billy Reay fuming.

"The key was that they scored a shorthanded goal," said Reay, "and that's just terrible. They shouldn't do that to us."

Dennis Hull's second score of the night following MacGregor's short-handed goal had tied it again before Dale Rolfe gave the Rangers the lead for keeps.

Boston got a three-goal performance from 36-year-old Johnny Buyck. It was his second hat trick in playoff action. The Bruins also used two scores from Eddie Westfall and one apiece from Phil Esposito, Ace Bailey, John McKenzie, Mike Walton and Don Marcotte in giving the Blues their second serious defeat. Boston beat St. Louis 6-1 in the first game of the series.

The Blues broke Boston goalie Gerry Cheevers' bid for a shutout in the third period with a score by Mike Murphy. Teammate Phil Roberto scored the other St. Louis goal. Their semifinals resume in St. Louis Sunday with the third game.

Beginning of the End

Boston's John McKenzie (19) screens Blues' goalie Jacques Caron perfectly as Boston teammate John Bucyk (not pictured) scores the first goal of a 10-goal spree that sent the Blues rocking to a 10-2 defeat, Thursday night, in Stanley Cup Playoff action. (UPI)

Sparky Stalcup Dead

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Wilbur (Sparky) Stalcup, 62, athletic director at the University of Missouri and coach of basketball at MU from 1946-61, died early today in Boone County Hospital.

Stalcup had been hospitalized since April 9 when he suffered an apparent heart attack. He was moved from intensive care only this week and, authorities said, suffered another apparent attack Thursday afternoon.

Mulkey Sets Record

LAWRENCE, Kan. — Phil Mulkey, 40, of Birmingham, Ala., established a record here Thursday in the masters decathlon of the Kansas Relays with a total of 5,683 points. That broke the old record held by Brayton Norton of Santa Clara, Calif.

Greg Hill captured the university division decathlon with a total of 7,530 points. The Oklahoma Christian College senior finished ahead of Mike Wedman, Colorado; Bruce Jenner, Graceland (Iowa) College; and Don Allbritton, Northeast Missouri State.

Randy Heierding of Oklahoma University, came within 10 seconds of tying the Kansas Relays' record in the six-mile run. He was clocked at 28:52.6 in winning the event.

KC Pair Takes Lead

KANSAS CITY (AP) — New doubles leaders appeared in two divisions of the Women's International Bowling Congress Thursday.

Artice Kramer and Ruth Wilk of Kansas City rolled 1,187 for the Open Division doubles lead, while Rogena Buol of Burlington, Colo., and Peg Rauenbuehler of Longmont, Colo., took over first place in Division I with 1,166.

Mrs. Wilk and Mrs. Kramer were 36 pins better than the former open leaders, Jean Steakley and Pam Meredith of Wichita, Kan.

Mrs. Wilk, who had a 622 doubles pinfall, also grabbed fourth place in the Open All-events.

Mrs. Buol and Mrs. Rauenbuehler, who are cousins, had a 21-pin edge over the former Division I doubles leaders, Doris Ferris and Lorraine Fullner of Norfolk, Neb.

Jerry Baker, 45-year-old bowling instructor from Grove City, Ohio, rolled the top series of the tourney, a 653, as she combined with Barbara Mercure of Columbus, Ohio, for second place in the Open doubles with 1,179.

Green, Dickinson

Two Share Lead

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — Hubert Green walked up to the ninth green at the long, tough La Costa Country Club golf course clapping his hands about a short iron shot that left him a four-foot putt for a birdie.

"Well, I was pretty proud of the shot and I thought it deserved to be applauded," he said with an Alabama drawl.

Green combined enough of those good shots with his strange putting style Thursday to share the first-round lead with Gardner Dickinson in the $165,000 Tournament of Champions.

Dickinson, 44, and Green, 25, fired four-under-par 68s for a two-stroke advantage over defending champion Jack Nicklaus, Bruce Crampton and Jerry Heard.

Nicklaus hit all 18 greens but needed 35 putts to stay among the leaders in this elite field of 26 players who have scored regular tour victories in the last 12 months.

Arnold Palmer and Lee Trevino had their troubles with the deep, clinging rough that makes this one of the most demanding courses on the pro tour.

Trevino never really got it going. He finished with a string of four consecutive fives on his card for 75. Palmer, who shot a 74, had the makings of a decent round until he bogeyed the 17th from the rough, the took a double bogey six on the 18th when he almost lost his tee shot in the foot-high grass.

Someone asked Green, a tour sophomore who hasn't played well since winning the Houston Champions International last year, if he were talking to himself on the course.

"I'll talk to anybody, he quipped. "The only thing is, when I'm playing there's nobody out there to watch me and nobody to talk to."

Green uses an unorthodox putting style, crouching far over, his feet well spread and his hands about four inches apart on the club.

But he needed only 27 putts.

THOMAS IN BULLPEN

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Lee Thomas will return to the St. Louis Cardinals this season as the team's batting practice pitcher and bullpen coach.

Thomas, 36, played for the Yankees, Angels, Red Sox, Braves, Cubs and Astros during eight seasons in the major leagues. In 1962 he had his best year, hitting .290 with 26 home runs and 104 runs batted in for the California Angels.

Resume Playoff Series

NEW YORK (AP) — New York struck out on Boston's fast ball, and if the Knicks want to stay in the game they're going to have to go slow.

Player-philosopher Bill Bradley was analyzing the sticky status of the National Basketball Association semifinal series which the Celtics could tie tonight if the Knicks fall into their trap again.

The Knicks, who took command of the best-of-seven series 2-0 by setting their own pace, lost game No. 3 because they ran to the Celtics' rhythm.

"They were able to up the tempo of the game," said Bradley. "We were able to keep up with them in the third quarter, but then they started hitting and we started missing."

"That's what happens in a fast game."

The defending champion Milwaukee Bucks will attempt to stay in the semifinals Saturday with a home court victory over Los Angeles, which leads that best-of-7 series 3-2.

In the American Basketball Association West Finals, the Utah Stars take a 2-1 lead to Bloomington, Ind., against the Pacers Saturday night. The Pacers were bounced from their home in the State Fairgrounds Coliseum at Indianapolis by a circus.

In the ABA East, the Virginia Squires, with a 2-0 edge over the New York Nets, twiddle their thumbs awaiting a Monday meeting in Uniondale, N.Y., after a nine-delay because of an ice show at the Nets' new Nassau Coliseum home.

Plans on Moving Tourist Facilities

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The owner of two tourist boats on the city's Mississippi riverfront says he plans to move them near the Earth City residential development on the Missouri River in west St. Louis County.

Frank Pierson, owner of the Goldenrod Showboat, said Thursday he wants to move the boat as soon as his application for a permit is approved by the Army Corps of Engineers.

Pierson said he also plans to move the floating restaurant Becky Thatcher and a landing barge to a dike near Earth City.

The project is being constructed on the Missouri River bottomland to the north of I-70 near St. Charles, Mo. Earth City is expected to be completed in about seven years.

Nisslake Meets Press

Tom Nisslake, former coach of the Dallas Chapparels of the American Basketball Association, talks to members of the press at a news conference in Seattle Thursday. Nisslake will take over the leadership of the Seattle SuperSonics next season. He reportedly received a multi-year contract. He takes over the coaching duties from Lenny Wilkens, who quit as the Sonics' coach at the completion of the 1971-72 season. Wilkens will, however, stay on as a player. Nelson Files Tentative Entry for USAC Race

Norm Nelson, owner of Nelson Racing Team Plymouths out of Racine, Wis., has filed for the April 30 United States Auto Club stock car "Race of Champions" at the Missouri State Fairgrounds.

Nelson, who teams with two-time USAC stock car champion Roger McCluskey of Tucson, Ariz., in the Plymouth duo, captured 11th place in the drivers points standings in 1971.

However, the Nelson team captured second in the owner points standings with 3,173.00 combined points from the finishes of himself and McCluskey. McCluskey captured third in the driver points standings.

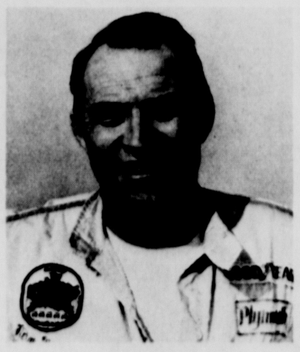

According to the entry, Nelson did not know whether he or McCluskey would drive the car, or which of the two cars would be used.

Reportedly, Nelson, who is second on the all-time USAC stock car points list, has had trouble getting his two cars ready for the current season.

Nelson won the USAC stock championship in 1960, 1965 and 1966. He has finished in the runner-up position on three other occasions — 1961, 1964 and 1970.

In the owners division, Nelson has finished at the top six times since 1963.

The 49-year-old veteran has posted 34 wins in the USAC stock car divisions, including a victory in last year's Kaukauna, Wis., 100-miler on May 23.

Norm Nelson

Other recent entries include last year's runner-up in the overall USAC stock car points standings, Jack Bowsher of Springfield, Ohio.

Brother Tom Bowsher, also from Springfield, Ohio, plans to run in the race on the Fairgrounds' half-mile dirt track. However, he is still working on his entry and he does not know if the car will be completed in time.

In addition to the Bowsher brother act, Gordon Blankenship, the younger brother of Lem Blankenship, has filed an entry.

The former Blankenship has been a regular on the International Motor Contest Association stock car trail in recent years. Both Blankenships hail from Keokuk, Iowa, the stock car racing mecca of the Midwest.

Verlin Eaker, who captured eighth place in the stock car division in 1971 on the strength of a win at the DuQuion, Ill., State Fair, has entered his 1970 Dodge Challenger.

The ticket office in front of the grandstand on the Fairgrounds will open Monday. The center will be open 2-7 p.m. April 24-28.

Tickets will again go on sale April 29, as well as the day of the race.

Enshrine Six Oldtimers

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — The talk here Thursday was about the days when the ball was lumpy and the hoop looked like a real basket.

The occasion was the enshrinement of six of basketball's great oldtimers in the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame.

It was a day for reunions and reminiscence and prompted National Basketball Association Commissioner Walter Kennedy to tell the oldtimers, "guys who couldn't even shine your shoes are trying to run this game today."

Enshrined into the hall of fame, located on the Springfield college campus, were: the late Edgar A. Diddle, coach at Western Kentucky for 42 years, ranking fourth in all-time college wins; Robert L. Douglas, 87, the coach and owner of the Renaissance Negro basketball team; Paul Endacott, 70, a star at the University of Kansas; Max (Marty) Friedman, 82, a standout in the early professional leagues; Edward Gottlieb, former owner of the Philadelphia Warriors and Clifford Wells, 76, the former coach at Tulane University and the first executive director of the Hall of Fame.

At the enshrinement dinner, UCLA Coach John Wooden received a special honor, never before awarded any sports figure. He was inducted into the Hall of Fame for the second time. He is already recognized as a player at Purdue University. But because of his unprecedented accomplishments as a coach, including six straight national championships at UCLA and eight in the last nine years, the hall of fame directors voted him dual recognition.

In other presentations, the France Pomeroy award to the nation's outstanding college player six feet or under went to Scott Martin of the University of Oklahoma, and the Lapchick trophy from "Basketball News" magazine went to Travis Grant of Kentucky State as the top senior college player of the year.

Kennedy later told newsmen he was referring to owners, general managers, coaches and players in his criticism of newcomers who are trying to run the game today. He said, in contrast, "the Bob Douglases, the Johnny Woodens, and the Adolph Rupps have given a lifetime to basketball."

CMC Baseball

Baseballers Try Again

"Weather has got to be leading the league," said Smith-Cotton baseball coach 'Skip' Schulz Thursday.

And, he may be right.

With every schedule in the Central Missouri Conference looking like bridge scorecards because of so many changes due to the weather, Smith-Cotton and Hannibal will try to work in a loop doubleheader in between the rain drops Saturday at 1 p.m.

The Tigers have played only one of their scheduled three contests so far this week. A conference twinbill with Columbia at Liberty Park Stadium scheduled for Wednesday had to be reset for May 6, after a mid-afternoon downpour washed out the games.

Smith-Cotton trails Columbia in the CMC standings with a 3-1 mark and could gain valuable ground on the undefeated Kewpies (2-0) with a pair of wins in Hannibal Saturday.

Columbia was scheduled to play Mexico in Columbia Friday afternoon in the only other league action over the weekend.

In non-conference action, Jefferson City has a single game slated in Ashland Friday afternoon.

Mike Arnold and Paul Kostopolus, who were to draw the starting nods against the Kewpies Wednesday afternoon, will probably be on the hill for the Tigers in Hannibal.

The Pirates, along with Mexico were still looking for their first win in league action. Both are 0-2.

Following Saturday's action, S-C will play in the Missouri State High School Activities Association's sub-district baseball playoffs, which opens Monday in Liberty Park Stadium.

The Tigers drew a first-round bye and will take on the winner of the Green Ridge-Windsor contest, Wednesday at 3:30 p.m.

Two Basketball Camps Scheduled This Summer

The athletic department of State Fair Community College announced Friday that it will conduct a two-week summer basketball camp at the Agriculture Building on the Missouri State Fairgrounds.

There will be two one-week sessions. The first is scheduled for June 5-9, and the second set for June 12-16.

Bill Barton, head basketball coach at the Pettis-Benton County junior college, will be in charge of the sessions. Many area high school coaches are also scheduled to help conduct the sessions, giving each player enrolled as much individual help as possible.

The cost for the camp will be $15 for a one-week session, and $25 for both.

The camp is designed for boys between the ages of 11 through 15.

Commando Effort Is Successful But Costly

SAIGON (AP) — An allied commando team snatched two U.S. airmen from the middle of a North Vietnamese invasion force, but the operation cost the lives of seven other Americans and used giant B52 bombers as decoys, U.S. sources disclosed today.

Despite a broken arm, a sprained back, lack of food and water and 53 years of age, Lt. Col. Iceal E. Hambleton managed for 11 days to evade North Vietnamese troops swarming across the demilitarized zone and sometimes coming within a few feet of him.

Hambleton was a navigator aboard an EB66, a modified bomber being used to jam North Vietnamese radar sites. The plane was hit by a missile April 2 just above the DMZ and Hambleton bailed out, landing just on the South Vietnamese side of the border. The other five men aboard the plane are listed as missing.

The other man rescued, Lt. Mark N. Clark of Los Angeles, was shot down April 3 in an OV10 spotter plane while participating in the search for Hambleton. Clark's copilot is missing and presumed dead.

A Super Jolly Green Giant helicopter was shot down April 6 during the search for the missing men, and all six of its crewmen were killed. Clark was rescued April 11 and Hambleton two days later, but meanwhile two other planes not connected with the search were shot down in the same area and their four crewmen were missing. The U.S. Command would not allow disclosure of the rescue of Hambleton and Clark until today, after the search for those four men was abandoned.

Both Clark and Hambleton were snatched from behind enemy lines in the Dong Ha area just below the DMZ by a volunteer team of South Vietnamese commandos led by U.S. Navy Lt. Tom Norris.

Informed sources said the team used secret techniques which they were not at liberty to disclose. But they reported that Hambleton was taken out by sampan and floated downriver until the South Vietnamese lines were reached.

Norris said Hambleton used a pocket radio and continued to call in air strikes against enemy forces despite his injuries and weakened condition.

When the commando team reached him at midnight, he could not walk and was barely able to crawl to a nearby stream to wash his face.

Norris said the team was spotted by three North Vietnamese but managed to evade them. The Vietnamese members of the patrol said they made an all night sampan ride through enemy lines within sight of North Vietnamese tanks and troops to reach Hambleton.

The commando team and Hambleton made it back to a South Vietnamese tank unit just after dawn. He was flown to a hospital in Da Nang.

"Hambleton was surrounded by enemy forces during most of his ordeal," said one officer. "The search and rescue forces made repeated efforts to extract the men with no success. One problem was that they were caught in the North Vietnamese invasion across the DMZ. The enemy was passing through the area and it couldn't have been worse. Many times the enemy search teams were within five feet."

The B52s made several raids in efforts to divert North Vietnamese troops away from the two downed airmen. It was the first time the eight-engine Stratofortresses were reported used in a rescue effort.

Officers said that in addition to the B52s, fighter-bombers and the biggest gunship the U.S. Air Force has, the four-engine, computerized AC130, flew constant cover for the operation.

Hambleton is a native of Rossville, Ill. His wife lives in Tucson, Ariz.

End War Discord Revealed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee are in disagreement over what response they'll make to the order from the Democratic Caucus to pass an end-the-war bill within 30 days.

But Rep. Cornelius E. Gallagher, D-N.J., who heads the Asian-Pacific affairs subcommittee, said a three-month deadline to halt the Indochina war might be "realistic in the light of the President's own timetable."

Gallagher's committee meets early next week.

Gallagher was not proposing a three-month deadline, however, and said he would not back any end-the-war measure in advance of the meeting.

He said the purpose of the meeting is to decide what course of action to take and not necessarily to promptly report out one of well over 100 pending war-halt bills and resolutions.

The resolution approved 144 to 58 by the Democratic Caucus, condemning both renewed U.S. bombing of North Vietnam and Hanoi's invasion of the South, directed the full committee's Democratic members to put out a bill on "promptly setting a date to terminate all U.S. military involvement." But it leaves details up to the committee.

Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis., a senior member, said he believes the committee will settle on a policy statement urging termination of the war but leaving the date up to President Nixon.

Zablocki said no committee bill would "be satisfying to the proponents of this (caucus) resolution."

When asked if it is reasonable to expect subcommittee approval of a war deadline as early as three months away, Gallagher said yes, in light of President Nixon's own timetable.

Impostor Surrender Expected

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A man identified as Wayne G. Farmer was expected to surrender to the Jackson County prosecutor today in connection with impersonation of a physician in Ohio.

Ohio has issued a warrant charging Farmer with larceny of $2,000 by trickery.

Kenneth K. Simon, Farmer's attorney, said he would surrender the man when the warrant arrives here.

David Dowd, prosecutor in Stark County, Ohio, says Farmer posed as Dr. Edward Bradley in taking the job of administrator and medical director of the 200-bed Molly Stark Hospital near Canton, Ohio, March 27. The man left hastily Tuesday after collecting $2,000 of the $29,000-a-year salary, Dowd said.

Federal and state police records in Kansas show that Farmer has served sentences in at least four states. He has been in the Kansas Penitentiary twice—for bigamy in Sedgwick County in 1959, and blackmail in Harvey County in 1962.

He was sent to the U.S. Penitentiary at Terre Haute, Ind., May 21, 1964, to begin a five-year term for using the mails to defraud. Earlier, he was in the federal reformatory at Chillicothe, Ohio, in 1956 and in a federal institution at Tallahassee, Fla., in 1958 for impersonating an Air Force officer and carrying forged securities.

Dowd said the man claimed to own nursing homes in Kansas City and Detroit.

The Missouri Health Division has licensed Wayne and Elvira Farmer as operators of the Northeast Rest Home in Kansas City.

Mrs. Karen Osborne, health division nurse assigned to inspect the home, said they "seem to be doing a good job." She described Farmer as "a very nice man."

The real Dr. Edward Bradley, who practices medicine in a Saginaw, Mich., hospital, recalled Farmer as a former assistant administrator, and said, "He was really a fine man."

Moon Geologists Describe Surface

By BILL STOCKTON
AP Science Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — If anyone thought it was a Navy fighter pilot and an Air Force jet jockey who landed on the moon Thursday, John W. Young set the record straight with his first words from the lunar surface.

"Well, we won't have to go far to pick up the rocks," he said.

For more than a year Young and Charles M. Duke Jr. trained for the few hours on the moon that would initiate them into mankind's most exclusive geology club. The Apollo 16 astronauts lived and breathed rocks.

They journeyed to New Mexico's Rio Grande Gorge, Arizona's Grand Canyon, Mauna Loa volcano in Hawaii and a crater in Nevada carved by a nuclear blast.

So they were ready at the Descartes highlands with the precise descriptive language born of the skillful observation they'd been taught to use.

"There's a ridge in front of us. One to the side of us" Duke said.

"This ridge in front of us does look like a subdued crater. It has a raised rim about 50 meters in front of us and about four or five meters tall. About 30 or 40 per cent of it looks like it is covered with boulders that are maybe half a meter in size ..."

"Just a minute, Charlie" Mission Control interrupted, bringing the attention of the excited lunar geologists back to the critical business of readying Orion for the lunar stay.

"We got a stay, Houston?" Duke asked, worrying that unnoticed problems might force Orion's two-man crew to leave the moon and prevent it from poking among those beckoning rocks.

"Orion you're stay ..." came the reply.

Young took up the scientific dialogue:

"The way these blocks are laid in here out my window I can see they look like they come from South Main (a major nearby crater). There's some biggies out there. Right out in front of us about a hundred meters in the 10:30 position I've got one that must be three meters across ..."

"You've never seen so many rocks, some biggies too," Duke said.

"Wait until you see the rocks in this place. It's enough to make a geophysicist sit up and crow," Young said.

The exuberant descriptions flowed until Mission Control once more reminded the crew of the business at hand.

"If you can tear yourself away from the window we'd like you to hold yourselves to the schedule," a capsule communicator said.

Moon View Is Clouded But Happy

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Dottie Duke stood outside in the glow of an illuminated American flag, peered up into the darkness and asked:

"Is it up there? ... Is it cloudy?"

Then, with a wistful smile, she added, "Phooey! It's cloudy. I was going to come out and look at it. It was so pretty last night."

The object of her attention was the moon, or, as it turned out, the lack thereof.

Shortly before an appearance outside her home she listened with friends and relatives as her astronaut husband, Charles M. Duke Jr., and Apollo 16 commander John W. Young flew the moonship Orion belatedly to the cratered lunar surface.

An engine malfunction on the command ship threatened America's fifth moon landing and eventually delayed the touchdown nearly six hours.

"They weren't in any danger," Mrs. Duke said. "I wanted them to land. I was all 'go' for landing."

She did admit to a few apprehensions as the space agency engineers worked feverishly to isolate and correct the problem.

"I'll have to admit I was a little uptight about it," she smiled, standing barefoot in her front yard against a backdrop of the glittering flag.

"Neighbors made it for Bill Anders for the Apollo 8 flight and we're just kind of passing it around the neighborhood," she said of the flag.

She said her first reaction to the successful landing was "Wow!"

But it was a resounding "Yippee!" that greeted house guests when she came skipping out of a bedroom where she monitored the descent of the landing module.

Murder Conviction In Fatal Shooting

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) — Richard Paul Anderson, 31, of St. Louis, has been convicted of second-degree murder for the July 1967 fatal shooting of a woman in St. Louis County.

A Circuit Court jury recommended Anderson be sentenced to 60 years in prison after the conviction Thursday. The judge said he will impose sentence after post trial motions are filed.

Anderson was charged with the killing of Mrs. Elbert Fisk at her home in Mattesse. Mrs. Fisk and her husband were shot to death.

The state had charged Anderson with first-degree murder and sought the death penalty.

Six Killed In Traffic Accidents

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Missouri recorded three traffic deaths within a span of less than 40-minutes early today.

The victims were Darrell Ryan, 31, of Bolivar, Mo., William L. Webb, 39, of Bethany, Mo., and William L. Mason, 44, of Nelson, Mo.

Ryan was alone in a car that crossed the median and struck a tractor-trailer truck headon on Interstate 44 at National Street in Springfield.

Webb was killed when his vehicle struck a bridge on U.S. highway 69 about five miles south of Bethany and another car crashed into the wreckage.

The driver of the other car, Craig L. Eckhart, 26, of Wichita, Kan., his wife, Janet, 26, and a daughter, Lori, 4, were injured and hospitalized at Bethany.

Mason died when his auto slammed into the rear of a tractor-trailer truck on Interstate 70 in Cooper County.

Francis Matlock, 71, of Rives, Mo., died about two hours after a three-car smashup two miles south of Kennett. She was riding with her husband, Charles, 81.

Helen Arnold, 69, of Stockton, Ill., was killed on U.S. 67 seven miles south of Bonne Terre. A car driven by her husband, Orren Arnold, 69, was hit broadside by another car, the highway patrol said.

A car-truck collision in the north part of Kansas City killed Johnnie Ray Roberts, 16, of Kansas City. The car was torn in half.

Residence Is Stolen

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — What once was a tiny pink cinderblock house sitting at 1516 Levy St. in a quiet, modest neighborhood here is no more. Somebody stole it.

"Everyone I tell starts laughing like hell," says Dr. Frank Banghart, who owned it.

"No telling where to look," adds Chief Deputy Ken Garrett. "Your guess is as good as mine."

The best clues to the theft have come from a property owner next door.

"They did a good job," said Mareesa Carpenter, discussing the two men and a teen-aged boy who carried the house away piece by piece. "They took everything that was usable and loaded it on the truck."

Mrs. Carpenter said the three drove up to the home site a couple of weekends in a row. They would spend Saturdays and Sunday afternoons sawing and slamming away with sledge hammers and then disappear.

She said she assumed the men were the owners clearing the property for other use.

Banghart, a professor of education administration at Florida State University, said he bought the 25-by-40 foot dwelling a month ago for $11,000 with intentions of using it as rental property.

Deputies said it disappeared sometime between April 1 and April 17.

Banghart said he doesn't know whether the loss will be covered by insurance.

"There's some rubble, but most is gone—roof, wiring, plumbing fixtures, even the front door," Banghart lamented. "All gone."

Space Shuttle Victory Noted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bipartisan boost has lifted President Nixon's space-shuttle plan to its first victory in Congress.

After killing a move to delay development of a reusable shuttle for roundtrip manned space flights, the House voted 277 to 60 Thursday to authorize a $3.43-billion space-agency budget.

The bill was sent to the Senate, where it faces similar opposition.

Denouncing efforts to hike space spending "at a time of growing financial crisis," Rep. H.R. Gross, R-Iowa, said: "It's nice to send men to the moon, but this is not going to buy bacon and beans in this country. I went through one depression ... and I don't want to go through another."

But Majority Leader Hale Boggs, D-La., and Minority Leader Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., applauded the space program's achievements and said provisions for moving forward with shuttle development during the fiscal year starting July 1 envision economic operations in the future.

In an effort to strike $200 million contained in the budget for space-shuttle development, Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., questioned the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's cost estimate. NASA figures developing a shuttle will cost $5.15 billion over six years. Aspin termed that "squishy soft" and said it could run to $35 billion.

Rep. Louis Frey Jr., R-Fla., a leader of the pro-shuttle forces, claimed Aspin's amendment to defer development for a one-year study by the National Academy of Sciences would kill the shuttle, wrecking the space program in the process.

"If you want a space program," said Rep. Olin E. Teague, D-Tex., "the shuttle is the program we should buy. If we cut out the shuttle, we don't have a space program."

Aspin's proposal then died, 103 to 11.

The budget also contains $27.9 million for building shuttle facilities at Cape Kennedy, Fla., and Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.

By voice vote, the House rejected a liberal-backed move by blacks to delete $2.5 million in funds for continued operation of the NASA tracking station at Johannesburg, South Africa.

Rep. Charles B. Rangel, D-N.Y., a member of the Black Caucus, said Congress "should end funding for this South African operation where apartheid and racial discrimination are established policies."

The bill is nearly $50 million over Nixon's request, with most of the boost earmarked for research in cutting jet noise. The agency sought $3.38 billion, $81 million more than it got for the current fiscal year.

Man Is Trapped In Burning Home

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Marcellus Ford, 63, a retired garage mechanic, died in a fire at his home Thursday night after he was trapped on the second floor by flames and smoke.

William Kelly, battalion fire chief, said the fire started in wiring in a kitchen pantry.

Kampala is one of Africa's fastest growing cities.

Open Meetings Petition Drive

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Citizens Lobby will go ahead with a petition drive to get an open meetings proposition on the ballot in November.

Raymond Appleton, Citizens Lobby director, said Thursday the decision to continue was made because financial support is being pledged. The group said last week it needed $9,000 for the campaign.

Appleton, of Jefferson City, said petitions will be printed next week and a drive to obtain nearly 100,000 signatures will be launched.

The Citizens Lobby contends an open meetings bill now being debated by the legislature is too weak. It wants legislation covering all tax-supported government units, from school boards to legislative committees.

The payments aren't very big, either.

Just a $94.00 cash down payment and $67.89 a month for 36 months.

(If you're not too good at math, that works out to a deferred payment price of $2,538.04, which includes a finance charge at an ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE of 12.83%.)

Along the way, you get a little financial help from the car.

It uses about 5 pints of oil instead of 5 quarts.

It doesn't need antifreeze because the engine's air-cooled.

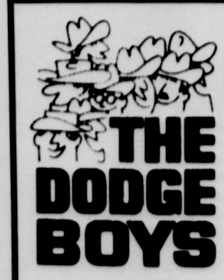

And although it does need gas, it doesn't need much of it (usually a gallon every 25 miles or so).

Of course, you might be the kind that likes to pay cash for everything.

In that case, the cash price is $2,114.00.

'Flower Sheriff' Urging Jail Reforms in San Francisco

By JEANNINE YEOMANS
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The city that brought you the flower children now brings you its new sheriff who: 1. Sports a peace symbol on his gold badge.

2. Offers to rent "rooms" at the county jail at $10 a night so the public can see what it's like to be behind bars.

3. Sponsors rock concerts to raise money for jail inmates, and dances on the stage himself.

4. Makes a surprise midnight visit to the jail, declares it "disgusting as hell," and launches reforms.

"Support Your Local Sheriff" took a new twist when former San Francisco policeman Richard D. Hongisto, 35, took office four months ago after defeating a 60-year-old incumbent who had held the job for 15 years.

Hongisto quit the police force in 1970 after 10 years to work as a television reporter. He says he decided while lying in bed one Sunday morning last July that he could be sheriff.

With the support of young people, liberals, minorities and the city's politically organized homosexuals, Hongisto won over three contenders who split the law-and-order vote. He received 36 percent of the vote.

Like his badge, his campaign posters featured the peace symbol, and he described his opponents as "hawks who were trying to solve social problems in the United States with more money, more weapons and more men. It hasn't worked in Vietnam and it won't work here."

On March 26, the sheriff raised $14,000 for jail inmates by throwing a rock concert. Hongisto danced on the stage in a pinstriped business suit, two-some performances with various women partners, until 2 a.m.

Proceeds from these "jail-house rocks" as he calls them are earmarked to buy TV sets and other recreational equipment for the jails.

Hongisto says he donates a third of his $26,337 annual salary to a youth group, as well as $150 a month to rent a storefront in the Haight-Ashbury district, once the heart of the hippie culture. Here he plans to sell art objects made by jail inmates who will get the money when they are released.

"I'm a liberal, maybe even a radical," the sheriff said in an interview during a typical 14-hour work day. He was dressed in a grey flannel suit and vest that made him look more like a banker than a sheriff.

"No doubt conservative people see things differently than I do. But the fact is we're getting many things accomplished, and that's the point," Hongisto said.

All crime fighting in San Francisco is done by the city police department. The 320-man sheriff's office runs the jails, provides court bailiffs and serves legal papers.

The new sheriff's major efforts to date have been for the 1,200 inmates in the country's two jails. Hongisto has begun a new drug counseling program, instituted employment and psychiatric counseling for all inmates and a venereal disease treatment program for the women. He has eliminated censorship of prisoners' mail and ordered deputies to ignore hair length when choosing trusties. His own dark hair is cut medium-length.

Hongisto has doubled medical care, increased jail classroom hours from two to 60 a week, and says, "we're grinding away at a dental program."

The sheriff surprised his deputies Jan. 17 with an unannounced midnight inspection of the women's jail. Because he took a reporter, San Franciscans found out that overcrowding was forcing women to sleep on the floors of cells without toilet facilities.

The sheriff also invited reporters along when he ate Easter Sunday dinner in a cell with inmates. An anonymous donor's $3,500 provided steaks in place of the usual Sunday fare of fishsticks or hotdogs.

Hongisto says his aim was to publicize his contention that prisoners cannot be fed on the present daily allowance of 68 cents per inmate. With public support, he hopes city officials will approve his request for a budget with $1.3 million more, than last year and a daily food allowance of $1.08.

Hongisto admits his style is a cross between Hollywood and Haight-Ashbury.

But he says his aims are deadly serious: publicizing the need to reform jails and the criminal justice system.

Mayor Joseph L. Alioto and other politicians have been cautious not to rain on the sheriff's parade.

"The sheriff is dedicated to more efficient management of our jails," says Alioto. "We intend to give him every assistance ...and the people must not be afraid to experiment."

A candidate for a Ph.D. in criminology from the University of California, Hongisto proudly points out that all his newly appointed aides have degrees, including the city's first black undersheriff.

Separated five months from his law student wife, Hongisto lives alone in a cluttered two-story walk-up.

Polly's Pointers

Just Takes A Call To Get Church Ride

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — I read the letter from C. R. who was feeling sorry for herself because no one picked her up to ride to church. I, as well as others I am sure, always have room for one more rider. I have often mentioned at church all anyone has to do is to call me and I will gladly come by for them but I do not have time to keep calling around to see if everyone has a ride. C.R. should get on the phone and I am sure she will find a ride if she just asks. — N. F. H.

DEAR GIRLS — E. R.'s letter expresses just about the same views but she adds that often a call from someone wanting a ride will prompt her to go to church when she was undecided about going, so she is always glad to receive such a call. She and her best friend both drive and, while they NEVER call the people they are so happy when they are called. She thinks C.R. is far too young to stay home and cry as the Lord helps those who help themselves. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I know there may be many angles to C.R.'s hurt feelings because no one offers her a ride to church. Has she contacted her pastor or asked for help from the church office? I suggest that she call some of the regularly attending church members who live never her. I know half a dozen I can call but I must call them and be ready and waiting when they stop for me. Do not sit at home and bawl but at least turn on your radio as there are many good sermons every Sunday as well as beautiful church music and hymns. I know what I am talking about as I have been through the same thing. May God be with you, C.R., and help you find a way. Each of us, the young and the old, have our problems to face and we can meet them with the help of God. — GOLDEN AGE

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — When my husband built a sidewalk he stained his permanently pressed shirts and jeans with cement which does not wash out. Help is really needed. — MRS. A. L.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with those large-size postage stamps. Two are really crowded on a small envelope. Why do we really need fancy stamps commemorating various events or people? Perhaps our postage rates would not be so high if the designers of those special stamps were eliminated. This would also cut down on printing machine changes. Regular-size stamps take about half the amount of paper. — MRS. C.R.

Ann Landers

Bargain Shopping Is Game For Him

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is hooked on The Supermarket Syndrome. He sits for hours and reads the food ads. Then he cuts out all the coupons and makes a road map indicating where he will go and how much he will spend. Crazy? You bet. He buys only "specials." Right now our storeroom is jammed with 24 cent tomatoes and 19 cent beans. When we go shopping together it's murder. I can stand on my head and if the item I want isn't on sale, he won't buy it. When there's a special on meat he tries to corner the market. Our freezer can't hold another lamb shank. The fact that nobody in the family likes lamb doesn't mean a thing to him.

What he saves on groceries he spends on gasoline, but he doesn't see this. Yesterday he drove 19 miles to save 11 cents on a broom. He bought four brooms and figured he had saved 44 cents. When I told him the broom we have is like new, and that I rarely use it because I mostly vacuum and use a damp mop, he accused me of trying to spoil his fun. What can I do with a man like that? We've been married 37 years. — Mrs. Bargain Hunter

Dear Mrs. Hunter: Bargain-shopping is a darn good hobby these days — but your character is hipped on pinching pennies and it sounds as if this is his principal source of kicks. Along with the lamb shanks in his freezer, the guy's got some hornets in his helmet. The game he plays is nutty but it's relatively harmless. Forget it.

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell me what to do about the following invitation. It came from both the friend who is giving the baby shower and the girl for whom the shower is being given.

"Dear ———.

You are invited to a shower. Please follow these instructions because duplication of items means money wasted. We would like you to bring three or more five-month size shirts with short sleeves and buttons. Also, diaper pins with metal heads that lock. (IMPORTANT: GET EXACTLY THE KIND DESCRIBED OR NONE AT ALL.)

If you can afford more than suggested, buy soft toys. Absolutely NO diapers or knitted sets, PLEASE."

What do you think of this invitation, Ann? I'm — In A Quandary

Dear Quan: I think if you bring diapers or a knitted set, the hostess might hit you. She sounds as if she means business.

My advice is to disregard the "invoice" and bring what you please. Or check the movies in town and see a good flick instead.

Dear Ann Landers: What can we do about friends who monopolize every conversation with the following topics: their trip to Europe, their new car, their new home, their son's honors, their daughter's popularity, the evening spent at the home of the Company President. They bla bla bla bla ... rattle rattle ... talk talk ... brag brag.

My husband and I are so sick of these egomaniacs we hate to see them coming. But we've been friends for so many years it would be impossible to stop seeing them. They didn't used to be this way. I happened when they came into a little money.

Any advice will be appreciated. After an evening with them my husband and I have to take something for indigestion, and I am not kidding. — Rope's End

Dear Rope's: Life is too short to spend evenings with people who make you sick. And these people do — figuratively and literally. Time enhances good friendships and diminishes others. When you reach the point of no return, write it off.

———

CONFIDENTIAL TO: SORRY NOW: All is forgiven. Cheer Up!

'Orange Juice' Duke Records Lunar First

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Astronaut Charles M. Duke Jr. has become the first man to land on the moon with a helmet full of orange juice.

The orange juice made its presence felt Thursday just as astronaut John W. Young pulled the lunar lander Orion away from the Apollo 16 command ship.

"We're sailing free!" Young exulted as the ship flew around from the dark side of the moon where the undocking took place.

"The only bad thing," chimed in Duke, "is I got a pack full of orange juice.

"I tell you, it's pretty hard to see things when you've got a helmet full of orange juice," Duke said. He added that some juice was drifting around in the zero gravity of the cabin.

"Every time I turn my head, I get orange juice," Duke told astronaut James B. Irwin, Jr., a capsule communicator at Mission Control. "It's delicious, Jim, but it's better in your mouth than floating around the cockpit."

The subject didn't come up again until several hours later after astronaut Thomas K. Mattingly II and Mission Control had wrestled with an engine problem that temporarily threatened the mission.

Then Irwin called up:

"Charlie, we're kind of curious about the orange juice problem. Did you have a bag failure?"

"I think it must be the valve," Duke said. "Every time my mike grabs the valve it bends it down slightly, which is enough to cause some to squirt out."

Space officials explained that Duke's microphone apparently was becoming entangled with a straw-like device through which the astronauts drink juice stored in the front of their space suits.

"I've already had an orange shampoo with the helmet on," Duke said.

Irwin said he had the same problem on Apollo 15 at one G gravity.

"At one G, though, it's on your visor and you can lick it off," Duke replied.

Duke indicated the juice would be no real problem, but he said:

"I wouldn't give you 2 cents for orange juice as a hair tonic. It mats the hair down."

Readers Request Some Definitions

Dear Dr. Lamb — We read your column every day. My husband has had his fifth light stroke, but, since we live in a small town, we can't find out from the library and our doctor doesn't tell us the meanings of some terms we need to know. Would you please tell me what is meant by syncope erysipelas, adrenalin injection and auricular fibrillation?

Dear Reader — Syncope is merely a medical term for fainting and, of course, it can be caused by a wide variety of things, such as bad news, standing at attention in parade formation, a needle puncture for drawing blood, or it can be associated with a stroke.

Erysipelas refers to a bacterial infection of the skin and it usually requires immediate treatment. It is caused by the streptococcus, which is a variety of the same germ that can cause strep throat.

Regarding adrenalin injection, adrenalin is the chemical substance elaborated by the center of the small adrenalin gland that rests over the kidney. Adrenalin is a vital substance to the body and mobilizes the body for "fight or flight" in response to stress. It has a powerful action on the heart and circulation and is injected as a medicine for this purpose under certain conditions.

Auricular fibrillation or atrial fibrillation refers to an irregularity of the top part of the heart. The two top chambers of the heart are the atria. Sometimes they beat very rapidly or twitch or fibrillate. The rate may be around 500 beats per minute. When they do this, these two top chambers don't contract normally. Even so, the heart function may be adequate in healthy people because the major pumping action of the heart to the arteries is accomplished by the two bottom chambers (the ventricles). How well the heart functions in the presence of atrial fibrillation depends on how rapidly the ventricles, or lower chambers, beat.

Atrial fibrillation has been observed in relatively healthy individuals who don't have any significant evidence of heart disease and one can even have the condition while engaged in fairly vigorous physical activity. It can also occur as a complication of food poisoning, indigestion or anything which disturbs the body chemistry. It may occur as a single episode with acute illnesses and it can be precipitated by drinking too much alcohol. It also occurs in heart disease, including atherosclerosis and rheumatic heart disease.

Celebrate Birthday Of Rome

ROME (AP) — Rome celebrated its 2,725th birthday today without the traditional wolves—animal variety—caged near city hall to recall the Eternal city's mythical beginning.

Some said their absence was due to the city government's staggering debt.

Others were indignant that the city fathers should forget the god who founded Rome.

Legend has it that the abandoned twins Romulus and Remus floated down the Tiber in a reed basket. They were found and suckled by a mother wolf, and Romulus founded Rome in 753 B.C. He killed his twin when Remus poked fun at the new city.

For years the government kept one or two mother wolves and an eagle—symbol of the ancient Romans—in two cages near the Campidoglio, the city hall atop the smallest of Rome's Seven Hills.

The eagle is still there, although there is some dispute whether he is an imperial eagle or the smaller, darker Appennine bird. But for nearly a year the wolf cage has been empty. A city hall spokesman said one wolf died and the other was transferred to the city zoo, apparently for health reasons.

"We've been looking for a replacement but just haven't found a suitable one," the spokesman said.

Female tourists, however, are certain Rome has more than enough wolves for one city.

April 21 is accepted as the date Rome was founded because old calendars fixed it as nine days before the calends, or the first day, of May. Under the old 29-day Roman month, that put it on the 21st of April.

Schedule Bond Election Soon

DIXON, Mo. (AP) — The Dixon school board has scheduled another election on a $195,000 school bond issue for May 11. The proposal failed to get two-thirds majority approval in the first election March 21.

The bonds would finance nine additional classrooms, offices, storage space, and a vocational building.

Nonpublic Confidence Expressed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two members of the President's Panel on Nonpublic Education say they are confident the White House will support the panel's recommendation for tax credits to parents sending their children to private schools.

But a White House spokesman says President Nixon will take a hard look at possible constitutional challenges to the proposal before taking a stand.

The four-member panel, appointed as part of an effort to redeem a Nixon pledge to help save troubled parochial schools from potential extinction, formally presented its report to the chief executive on Thursday.

In essence, the panel said it would be cheaper to aid nonpublic schools than to bring their 5.2 million students into the public school system at a cost estimated to be as high as $7.7 billion.

Cost of the tax credit proposal, a key part of the panel's recommendations, was put at $500 million a year.

In a formal letter accompanying the report, panel chairman Clarence C. Walton said the group is convinced that, "although direct aid to nonpublic schools is prohibited, aid to parents and children will pass judicial muster."

Hollyhock Explosion Begun at Rock Hill

ROCK HILL, Mo. (AP) — A hollyhock population explosion, designed to beautify Missouri and possibly the nation, was begun this spring by John K. Morton of Rock Hill, a St. Louis suburb.

Morton, self-proclaimed "Hollyhock King of the United States," recently ran a notice in suburban newspapers saying he would give away upon request 500,000 hollyhock seeds.

Within two weeks, Morton said, 1,500 requests eliminated his supply and some requests could not be filled. According to Morton they will have to wait until next spring when he expects to have 2 million seeds available.

Morton, 77, says it all began in 1968 when he purchased a pack of 12 seeds. The pods produced from the plants enabled him to supply seeds to his friends in Missouri, Illinois and Tennessee.

The "Hollyhock King" said one stalk will produce about 5,000 seeds in two years. Morton estimates that by 1976 he can have the United States proclaimed the "hollyhock country" of the world in much the same way as Holland is known for its tulips.

Morton, a former resident of East St. Louis, Ill., said he included planting instructions and advice on how to harvest the seed crop in the fall with each package of seeds he gave away.

Morton, twice a widower, said he plans to offer seeds to the Missouri Highway Commission if the agency promises to plant them along state highways. Hollyhocks grow from July until the first snow.

Morton said the requests he received were usually accompanied by letters which he said renewed his faith in human nature.

One man who requested seeds wrote, "In this dog-eat-dog world, it is refreshing to find a fellow who wants to give something away."

Morton said, "Plants can cross all boundaries and will grow in the ghetto as well as in the suburbs."

"Even simple things can show that people do care," he added.

Consolidation Try Gets Consideration

WEBSTER GROVES, Mo. (AP) — Consolidation of all Missouri's transportation expertise under one "Organizational roof" was recommended Thursday night by Democratic gubernatorial candidate Edward L. Dowd.

"I think it's not overstating the case to say Missouri's transportation planning capability is 'bush league' compared to other states our size," Dowd said.

"Rather than fragmenting what little capability we currently have in planning," he added, "we should consolidate existing expertise and augment that with specialized technical support in various areas of transportation.

"More importantly we need an organization in the state that can see and respond to our total needs in transportation and stop the parochial bickering between departments which serve not the taxpayer but the egos of some bureaucrats," Dowd contended.

Concordia Accord Partial

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Partial settlement has been reached by officials of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod in a controversy involving the teachings of an assistant professor at Concordia Seminary in suburban Clayton, Mo.

Officials reported Thursday that the agreement came out of a meeting in Edmonton, Alta., between the synod's president, Dr. J. A. O. Preus, and the seminary's president, Dr. John H. Tietjen.

At the meeting it was agreed that Dr. Arlis Ehlen will not teach a course involving the first five books of the Bible during the 1972-73 academic year, the announcement said.

The Synod said that Ehlen's teachings will be limited to courses involving text interpretation and Semitic languages.

Last December the Seminary Board of Control declined to renew Ehlen's contract because of his stance toward Angels, a personal devil and miraculous events surrounding the Exodus.

In February, though, the Board of Control agreed to rehire Ehlen for a year. Preus directed Tietjen not to permit Ehlen to teach courses "in which he would have opportunity to advocate his higher critical views concerning Biblical interpretations."

The controversy continued last month when Tietjen replied he was unable to comply with such a directive.

Over Hair Length

Judge's Decision Favors Smithton Youth

A 16-year-old student returned to his classes at Smithton High School Thursday after it was revealed at a Wednesday conference in Jefferson City that the school's suspension action against him because of the length of his hair was unconstitutional.

Jeff Carr, son of Mrs. Ruth Carr, Route 2, attended the meeting with Judge Elmo Hunter of the U.S. District Court of the Western District of Missouri, Arthur Benson, Kansas City, general counsel for the American Civil Liberties Union-Western Missouri, Wendell Ware, Smithton School superintendent, and James Durley, attorney for the school board.

Judge Hunter dispensed with Benson's motion for a preliminary injunction against the board's action and instead held an informal conference in his chambers with the persons concerned. Benson said this procedure was followed because of an obvious precedent supporting Carr's contention that his suspension was not proper.

Benson said Hunter referred to an Oct. 21, 1971, ruling in the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals, St. Louis, on the case of Bishop vs. Colaw which said that restrictions on hair length such as those included in the Smithton dress code were in violation of the First, Fourth, Ninth and 14th Amendments to the U.S. Constitution.

Benson explained that the first Amendment covered the right to expression, the Fourth covered the right to privacy as assured in parental upbringing, the Ninth covered all other rights reserved to the people, and the 14th concerned due process in that it has been demonstrated that there is no reasonable need for hair codes.

Carr was suspended March 13 because of his failure to comply with a dress code which states in part that a boy's hair may not be so long as to touch his collar, ears or eyebrows.

Mrs. Carr said Thursday morning that both she and her son were happy the issue had been resolved and that her son could once again continue with his education, regardless of the length of his hair.

Enemy Seizure of Highway Potential Threat To Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — Waves of enemy troops in overpowering strength seized a 50-mile stretch of Highway 1 in eastern Cambodia Thursday, posing another potential threat to Saigon, 40 miles down the road.

At the same time, North Vietnamese troops and tanks struck savagely at An Loc in a renewed attempt to seize that provincial capital, 60 miles north of Saigon.

Cambodian officers suggested that the enemy aim is to seize all of Svay Rieng Province in eastern Cambodia, thereby re-establishing border bases for joining the offensive in South Vietnam. The Viet Cong has made no secret of the fact that the ultimate aim of the offensive is to capture Saigon.

The collapse of a large part of Svay Rieng Province opened a new route for enemy forces either to threaten Saigon from the west, or to push southeastward into the Mekong Delta.

The fallen Cambodian positions included Prey Phau, close to the point where Highway 1 crosses the border into South Vietnam 40 miles west of Saigon. The province capital of Svay Rieng, 25 miles farther west, was under heavy enemy pressure, Cambodian officers reported.

Much of the Cambodian sector had been patrolled by Saigon troops until March 30, when the North Vietnamese opened their general offensive, forcing the pullback of South Vietnamese forces.

In the battle for An Loc, enemy troops attacked South Vietnamese rangers and paratroopers north and southeast of the city following a day-long, 1,600-round shelling Wednesday.

Field reports said there was close combat around an airborne unit fire base called Hill 169, lying 2½ miles southeast of An Loc.

A score of U.S. B52s dropped 500 tons of bombs on three sides of An Loc, trying to break up North Vietnamese concentrations.

While fighting raged on the two fronts, U.S. officials said all signs point to a shift of North Vietnam's general offensive to the central highlands in the next 48 hours.

The loss of several South Vietnamese outposts and villages is being assessed by some officials as a diversionary move to draw off reinforcements and open the way to Communist command strikes at Dak To, a district town and Kontum, a provincial capital.

John Paul Vann, the senior U.S. adviser in the 2nd military region, said the campaign is expected to last about two months. He predicted it would concentrate on three provinces: Kontum and Pleiko in the highlands and Binh Dinh on the central coast, 75 miles to the east.

U.S. officials told AP special correspondent Peter Arnett the North Vietnamese have the initiative to hit when they want.

The concern of Americans is that the South Vietnamese units in the area are more inclined to stay in one place than to move into the field against the enemy.

Some officials see the North Vietnamese simply bypassing fire bases and moving eastward to attack Kontum, where defenses are stretched thin.

Kontum and Pleiku, 25 miles farther south, are among the provincial capitals that leading officials, including President Nguyen Van Thieu, have named as the Communist command's most likely objectives for capture and establishment of a Viet Cong government.

Although the main fighting in the region has not yet occurred, Vann told Arnett the North Vietnamese are believed to have lost 6,000 killed already and the government about 1,500.

The only good news from Cambodia was a high command report that 1,000 troops trapped near the temple city of Angkor Wat in the northwest had been reached by a rescue column. The troops had been trapped for three days in a campaign to cut enemy supply lines in the area.

The North Vietnamese offensive was reflected in the casualty lists last week. South Vietnamese casualties rose to the highest level since the Tet offensive in 1968 and American losses were the highest in six months.

The U.S. Command said 12 Americans were killed and 63 wounded. Six others died of nonhostile causes.

The South vietnamese reported 1,002 government troops killed in action and 2,655 wounded. The Saigon command claimed 7,117 enemy troops were killed, also the highest since the Tet offensive.

Panda Debut

Hsing Hsing and Ling Ling, the only pair of giant pandas in captivity outside China, made their debut at the National Zoo in Washington Thursday. Ling Ling (top), a 136-pound female sits up and licks her paw. Hsing Hsing (bottom), eyes some apples after finishing the contents of his pan. The bear-like animals are being kept in separate in air conditioned rooms. They eat two meals a day and if they spill a little on their fur, they neatly lick it up. (UPI)

Order Drafting of Bill For Complete Withdrawal

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats described the bombing of North Vietnam as a dangerous escalation of the war Thursday and ordered the prompt drafting of a bill calling for complete U.S. withdrawal from Indochina..

The resolution, approved 144 to 58, was the strongest antiwar action taken so far by the House Democratic Caucus.

Adoption of the resolution, which also denounced the North Vietnamese offensive, was by far the biggest victory yet scored by the antiwar forces in the House and is evidence of their growing strength.

Previously end-the-war measures have passed the Senate only to be buried in the House.

In the view of supporters of the resolution the vote binds Democratic members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee to produce an end-the-war bill within 30 days so the House can vote on it.

But at least two members of the committee who voted against the resolution said they don't consider themselves bound, and caucus Chairman Olin E. Teague, D-Tex., shared their view.

A resolution by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., to condemn the North Vietnamese offensive and declare Senate support for U.S. government policy in Vietnam was placed on the Senate calendar Thursday after Goldwater abandoned his plea for immediate Senate action. Goldwater said he would try to call it to a vote later or offer it as an amendment to another bill. His resolution was supported in speeches by Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., and Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb.

At the Pentagon, a spokesman said North Vietnamese army engineers are running a vital tank and truck fuel pipeline across the Demilitarized Zone into South Vietnam.

"There is no evidence of movement back across the DMZ by any of the invasion forces," said spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim.

Also in Washington, a broad coalition of peace groups tentatively announced plans for a series of peaceful antiwar demonstrations May 4 patterned after the Oct. 15, 1969 Moratorium Day.

While several members of Congress denounced President Nixon's Vietnam policy at the peace group's news conference, Nixon gained support for his policies from Frank E. Fitzsimmons, president of the Teamsters union.

"In spite of a flexible approach, many concessions and many alternative proposals made by the President to North Vietnam leaders, Hanoi to this day exhibits a callous disregard for an honorable settlement," Fitzsimmons said.

The House Democrats' resolution declares "the national interest in obtaining a permanent peace with security would best be served by promptly setting the date to terminate all U.S. military involvement in and over Indochina, subject only to obtaining the release of our prisoners of war and all available information on the missing in action."

It directs the Foreign Affairs Committee to report out a bill designed to meet that objective, an unprecedented action by the caucus, which normally only recommends that its policies be carried out.

The resolution was first adopted 135 to 66 as a substitute for a resolution endorsing President Nixon's Vietnam policy. After the addition of language condemning what it called the invasion of South Vietnam by North Vietnam, it picked up additional strength.

Among those switching to support the resolution on the final vote were Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., and Majority Leader Hale Boggs, D-La. It was their first break with administration policy on Vietnam.

Although the rules of the caucus make it possible to bind all House Democrats to follow caucus policies when it is adopted by a two-thirds majority, exceptions are allowed and it was clear they would be invoked by members of the Foreign Affairs Committee who opposed the resolution.

No antiwar legislation has ever been approved by the committee, thus preventing the House from dealing with the issue in a clear-cut, head-on manner. All its previous votes on Vietnam policy have been procedural motions and amendments to other bills.

Following Delay

Astronauts Land Safely

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Two American astronauts landed safely on the moon Thursday night to begin an expedition that was temporarily threatened by a failure in the main engine of the Apollo 16 command ship, Casper.

Astronuts John W. Young and Charles M. Duke Jr. thus achieved man's fifth landing on the moon and began a three-day scientific exploration on a plateau high in the lunar mountains.

After a delay of almost six hours, Young and Duke guided their lunar lander in a long curving descent from orbit and brought it to rest among the Descartes Mountains.

They were the 9th and 10th Americans to make a lunar landing but the first to do so in a mountain region.

The third Apollo 16 astronaut, Thomas K. Mattingly II, remained in lunar orbit aboard the command ship.

The main rocket engine problem in his ship had been isolated in a back-up steering motor, and Mission Control ordered the moon landing delayed while the problem could be studied.

A go-ahead for the landing was given shortly before 7 p.m. EST, and Young and Duke began their powered descent to the moon's surface during their 16th lunar orbit.

The astronauts' planned first moon excursion was delayed until 11:30 a.m. EST Friday. It was not immediately decided by Mission Control what other effect the late landing would have on the second and third surface excursions.

Young and Duke are scheduled to deploy an atomic science station near the landing site. They will also use an electric car to roam the surface in search of evidence of volcanoes thought to have convulsed the moon billions of years ago to form the bright, rugged mountains which cover most of the lunar surface.

Young and Duke ignited the powerful descent engine on their spindly-legged lander and began the dive toward the moon. Because of the delay and the rotation of the moon under the spacecraft, the landing site was 20,000 feet off the moon lander's path.

A powerful rocket firing corrected the problem, slowed the craft and sent it curving downward.

The astronauts were unable to see their landing site until, at 52,000 feet, they rotated the ship and glimpsed their target for the first time.

Young throttled the rocket engine to full power and began the final, almost vertical, ever slower descent.

The engine throbbed for 12 minutes,

Sedalian Is Raped In Home Wednesday

A 30-year-old Sedalia housewife was raped early Wednesday afternoon by a man who requested to use her telephone on the pretense of having car trouble, according to Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax.

The woman, who was not identified, apparently got off work about 2 p.m. and went shopping before her children returned from school, Fairfax told The Democrat-Capital.

While she was returning home, he said, she noticed a car behind her. The vehicle stopped across the street from her home on East 13th and a man, described as in his early 20's, got out to apparently check the tires on the car.

Fairfax said the woman did not become concerned about the man, who continued to check his tires while she took about three bags of groceries into her home.

Finally, however, the man approached the house, and asked to use the woman's telephone, saying he was experiencing car trouble, Fairfax said. The woman refused but offered to make the telephone call for the man, he said.

"He apparently said something about Triple-A," Fairfax said, "and gave the indication he was looking for the telephone number in his billfold."

The woman told the man she would get him the telephone book and, while she was doing so, he entered the house, using a door the woman thought was locked.

According to Fairfax, the man threatened the woman with a gun and forced her to go to the bedroom, where he tied her wrists to the bedposts with a rope and raped her.

The woman suffered skin burns on both wrists, Fairfax said. She was examined by a Sedalia physician late Wednesday afternoon.

Fairfax, who said he arrived at the scene about 30 minutes after Sedalia police first received word of the incident, reported the woman was alone in the home at the time of the rape. He added the woman told him she had never seen her assailant before.

After the attack, the man left the house and drove away. Fairfax emphasized that Sedalia and area residents should exercise caution when strangers approach their homes. "Don't let someone come in your home to make a telephone call. Offer to make it for him, but keep the doors locked," he said.

An earlier report of an attempted rape on Sedalia's west side was not confirmed. "That was an entirely different situation," Fairfax said. A report to Sedalia police that an attempted rape had taken place apparently did not prove true after an investigation was made, it was reported.

A spokesman for the Knob Noster Police Department told The Democrat-Capital Thursday afternoon that the investigation of what had been earlier reported as a possible attempted rape there Wednesday night had been concluded.

It was learned that a Knob Noster woman had been treated by a Whiteman AFB physician for scratches to her neck.

Groundbreaking For City Hall Is Friday

The official groundbreaking ceremonies for Sedalia's new city hall will be held at 11:30 a.m. Friday, according to Mayor Jerry Jones.

According to Dick Dean, of Dean Construction Co., contractors for the project, the old Sedalia scale house, located west of the existing city hall, will be torn down first. He said, however, it would be about three weeks before any heavy construction work can be launched because it would take Missouri Public Service Co., about that long to relocate utility lines in the area.

Jones said that members of the City Council and representatives from the contracting firm and Sammons and Buller, architects, had been invited to attend the ceremonies.

Flanigan Denies Fixing of Suits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential aide Peter M. Flanigan Thursday denied attempting to fix the outcome of three multimillion dollar antitrust suits pending against International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. last summer.

Flanigan's long-sought appearance before the Senate Judiciary Committee was interrupted repeatedly in a wrangle over the range of questions he could nor would answer.

Flanigan, the administration's chief emissary to the business community, said his role in the decision not to carry ITT cases to the Supreme Court was limited to one public servant "merely assisting another overworked public servant."

The other public servant, Flanigan testified, was former Asst. Atty. Gen. Richard W. McLaren, antitrust chief while Richard G. Klendienst was deputy attorney general and the ITT cases were pending.

The committee is reconsidering at his request Kleindienst's nomination to be attorney general.

The hassle over which questions Flanigan should answer stemmed from the concept of executive privilege and an agreement reached by the committee on the specific subjects to be discussed.

Flanigan had been named in testimony as the man who arranged, at McLaren's request, a study by New York investment banker Richard J. Ramsden which McLaren testified played a major role in his change of mind.

Ramsden, a friend of Flanigan's since 1965, was asked to study the financial impact on ITT of the possible divestiture of the Hartford Fire Insurance Co.

In the final antitrust suit, ITT was permitted to hold on to the $1 billion insurance operation.

Flanigan gave this account of how he arranged for the report to be prepared:

In early May, 1971, McLaren called Flanigan and asked him to find Ramsden to do the independent financial analysis. Ramsden had done a similar job for Flanigan at McLaren's request while Ramsden was a White House fellow in 1969.

Along with the request came a memorandum from McLaren supplied by an ITT director which drew the same ultimate conclusions as the final Ramsden report—a Hartford divestiture would be devastating to ITT stockholders.

Repeatedly, Flanigan was asked if he had been contacted last spring by ITT officials anxious about their antitrust cases pending in the Justice Department and McLaren's reputation as a trust-buster.

That, Flanigan answered, is outside bounds set by the committee in a 12-1 vote Tuesday when only Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., dissented.

As voted by the committee, the ground rules permit Flanigan to answer what he knows about placing the Republican national convention in San Diego, the Ramsden report, and two meetings in Washington attended by ITT officials.

Golden Anniversary Salute to Kiwanis

The Sedalia Kiwanis Club is in the middle of Kiwanis Week, which will be climaxed Saturday with a Golden Anniversary Banquet.

There is always the danger that we will take our service clubs—of which Kiwanis is one of the largest—for granted. But the many civic activities in which Kiwanis is and has been involved, as described elsewhere in today's paper, should remind us otherwise.

In the course of its 50-year history in Sedalia, the local Kiwanis Club has undertaken a multitude of community-building activities, many on a continuing basis.

Assistance to youth is just one area in which Kiwanians have long been deeply involved. From Little League, to Girl's State, to the American Field Service, debate tournaments and scholarships —just to mention a few—Sedalia Kiwanians are quietly going about the business of helping young people to expand their horizons and realize their full potentials.

In youth work and a host of other areas, the Kiwanis Club has helped to make Sedalia a better town to live in. It would have been a lot tougher without them.

Some would say today that the service club as we have known it over the years has outlived its usefulness, that its contributions have slackened off, leaving other agencies better prepared to take on the job of helping others.

The half-century of service accomplished by Sedalia's Kiwanians, which continues today, is a strong refutation of this belief.

We salute our local Kiwanis Club on its golden anniversary, and wish it another 50 years of service to this community.

"Welcome Aboard!"

Justice's 'Amnesia' Not Really Lying

WASHINGTON — A 10-year-old boy named Virgil has just written me a letter.

Buchwald

He says, "Dear Sir, I notice in the newspapers that several Justice Department attorneys have testified in the ITT case. Sometimes one Justice attorney says one thing and then another Justice attorney says another. Suppose they're lying? Who prosecutes the prosecutors?"

Dear Virgil,

Yours is a very impertinent question which really doesn't deserve an answer. To assume that someone in the Justice Department would tell an untruth makes you no better than a Berrigan brother.

A Justice Department attorney takes an oath that he will never tell a lie — on a Bible. This Bible belongs to the attorney general, who has taken an oath on a Bible that belongs to the chief justice of the Supreme Court, who has taken an oath on a Bible that belongs to the President of the United States. You can readily see the trouble a Justice Department attorney would be in if he perjured himself on that many Bibles.

What you are confusing is perjury and loss of memory. Several of the Justice Department attorneys have suffered from an inability to remember facts pertinent to the ITT investigation. This is understandable when you realize that most Justice Department attorneys are trained to ask questions, but are very rarely called upon to answer them.

If you spent all your life asking, "Where were you on the night of Feb. 12, 1961?" you would be in a heck of a jam if someone suddenly asked you that question.

It is for this reason that under our system Justice Department attorneys in congressional hearings are permitted to "correct" their testimony and "refresh" their memories.

★ ★ ★

The fact that a Justice Department attorney says one thing in the morning does not preclude him from saying the opposite in the afternoon. And just because one Justice Department attorney says one thing and another Justice Department attorney says another thing does not mean either one of them is lying. It just means they're getting at the truth from opposite directions.

Let me give you an example. Justice Department attorney Wishbone tells a Senate committee that he's never talked to anyone in the Zigzag Monopoly Company. He goes home that night and his wife reminds him that his brother-in-law is president of the Zigzag Monopoly Company. So he goes back to the committee and says he's just remembered that his brother-in-law is president of the company, but he hasn't seen him in 10 years.

Then he takes a recess break and his secretary tells him he's had 20 meetings with his brother-in-law in the past three months.

So he goes back to the committee and says he would like to correct the record; he did see his brother-in-law, but they never really talked business. That night his brother-in-law calls him and says he's in trouble with the IRS because he's put Wishbone down for 20 business lunches.

So Wishbone goes back to the committee the next day and says he talked business with his brother-in-law, but he did nothing to affect Zigzag Monopoly Company's case.

That, Virgil, is not called perjury — it's called amnesia.

I can assure you that your question about who prosecutes the prosecutors has no validity in Washington. There is no reason to prosecute anyone in the ITT case because everyone is telling the truth; and if you keep writing troublemaking letters like this, I won't be surprised if, when you grow a little older, someone down here doesn't start tapping your phone.

No 'Pushing Around,' President Reaffirm

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — President Nixon ordered the bombing of the North Vietnamese heartland as much to impress Moscow as to deter Hanoi.

He wanted the Kremlin to understand his quest for peace doesn't mean he can be "pushed around."

In his private conversations, he has declared fiercely that he wants to lower tensions around the world and win re-election in November, but that he won't abandon America's commitments to achieve these goals.

Nixon has expressed admiration for the late President John F. Kennedy for facing down the Russians during the Cuban missile crisis, and he is prepared to do it again if another confrontation should develop.

Secret intelligence reports suggest that Hanoi expected the anti-war pressures in the United States to keep American air-sea power at bay after the assault across the demilitarized zone. But Hanoi underestimated Richard Nixon, who never hesitated to strike massive air blows against North Vietnam.

Earlier, he had made secret overtures through both Moscow and Peking to bring pressure on the North Vietnamese to call off the offensive. Chinese Premier Chou En-lai reportedly tried to persuade the North Vietnamese not to risk a military showdown, but they went ahead with the offensive in spite of the advice from Peking.

The Russians, on the other hand, refused to discourage the attack. Intelligence reports claim that the Kremlin, while it didn't go so far as to encourage Hanoi to invade South Vietnam, had advance knowledge of the invasion plans. The attackers also used Soviet-made tanks, artillery and anti-aircraft missiles.

The President believes the Kremlin could have prevented the invasion by threatening to cut off military supplies. He intends to demonstrate his resolve, therefore, by shutting off the supplies himself, if possible, with a blizzard of bombs.

The Central Intelligence Agency has warned all along that bombing will never stop the needed supplies from reaching Communist forces in South Vietnam. Gen. Creighton Abrams, the U.S. commander in Vietnam, has agreed that the supplies for the present offensive were stockpiled in advance.

But he has warned that Hanoi has the power to continue a prolonged offensive. Twelve of North Vietnam's regular divisions are now fighting in the south. Another division is reported on the way to the front. This leaves only two training divisions at home.

Once the lines become stabilized, Abrams has suggested, the Vietnam war may become a protracted, Korea-style conflict. He recommended the bombing of supply depots around Hanoi and Haiphong, therefore, to disrupt enemy logistics and to reduce the supplies that will reach front-line troops in the months ahead.

When President Nixon first took over as commander-in-chief, the Joint Chiefs advised him that the South Vietnamese army by itself would be unable to withstand an all-out North Vietnamese assault "in the foreseeable future." This assessment has now been changed, but the Joint Chiefs have warned it will take massive American air support to blunt the North Vietnamese offensive.

In private, meanwhile, the President has repeated again and again that he doesn't intend to be "pushed around" — not in Vietnam, the Middle East nor anywhere else.

Once, when Jewish leaders were questioning his willingness to support Israel, Nixon asked an aide incredulously: "Can these people really believe that I could sit in this chair and let anything happen to Israel?"

The most competent White House sources tell us emphatically that Richard Nixon would like to avoid a confrontation with the Kremlin but that he won't back down from one.

We tried unsuccessfully to reach our column-writing colleague, Joe Alsop, prior to our recent report that he was among the bigshot passengers chauffeured around Washington by Pentagon cars in apparent violation of military regulations.

Alsop, who is in Southeast Asia, has now wired us the following response: "I have never used military transport that was not equally available to other reporters of comparable decrepitude.

"In Vietnam," the telegram adds, "I have also followed the strict rule of refusing any assistance going beyond what was given Scotty Reston when he made his trip there."

Reston is the distinguished columnist and vice president of the New York Times, whose views on the war have contrasted with Alsop's hawkish stance.

Footnote: We also reported that during a recent NATO military junket in the United States, cars rented by the Pentagon for the visitors' use in Washington were to be kept on rental while they spent five days traveling elsewhere. After we began looking into the matter and had sent out our column for publication, the plans were abruptly changed and the cars were returned to the rental agency. They were then rented again when the visitors returned to Washington.

A Conservative View

Tories' Patron Honored

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

CHICAGO — Nearly 200 American writers and teachers, all of them identified with the conservative cause, gathered here in Chicago the other night to honor a benefactor and to renew old bonds. Liberals, of course, have such occasions also; they are indispensable to the keeping of any faith; and they remind us anew of the importance of ritual in the survival of civilized man.

Kilpatrick

Our own modest consistory was summoned to pay homage to Henry Regnery, founder and now chairman of the board of the publishing house that bears his name. Henry is a diminutive fellow, maybe five-feet-six, slender as a snap bean, but he stands pencil straight and his placid face belies a stubbornness within. He is 60 years old, but in the past 25 years he has not gained a pound or added a wrinkle.

These were the 25 years we recognized last week — the quarter century since Henry, at 35, plunged into the perilous waters of the book publishing business. He set out in Chicago, of all places, to publish books by conservatives, of all people; and for nearly two decades, until Arlington House and the Conservative Book Club came along, Henry and Devin Adair Garrity in New York were the only two such lunatics in the land. Bless them, O Lord!

You have to be a professional writer, perhaps, to understand that invocation fully. The act of writing, in itself, is among the most agonizing occupations ever contrived by man; but to write futilely — to write and not get published — is to know the tortures of the damned. It is like the tree that falls in the desert: Does anyone hear? Without a publisher, a writer is an unstrung fiddle; other instruments are playing. He is mute.

Henry Regnery made it his mission to string us up. He challenged the orchestrated liberalism of the whole book publishing world — not merely the house themselves, but also the book reviewers, the periodicals, the critics who can make or break a title in the market. Then, as now, the media were dominated by intellectuals hostile to conservative thought. Henry took on the whole crew.

Thus, when it was highly fashionable to praise the Chinese Communists, those agrarian reformers, he published Freda Utley's "The China Story," one of the most powerful anti-Communist works of our time. When progressive education was all the rage, he sought out Mortimer Smith, and thereby introduced in the groves of academe a cool voice of common sense. He breached the very citadels of the Eastern Establishment with Bill Buckley's "God and Man at Yale." In 1957, when liberals ruled the Southern roost, he sought a conservative in Richmond and let the young cock crow.

Most significantly, he discovered in Mecosta, Mich., up in the burnt-woods country, a ruddy little Scot whose pedantic image concealed a quick and lively passion. This was Russell Kirk, teacher and philosopher. His seminal work, "The Conservative Mind," remains after nearly 20 years the one best starting point for an understanding of contemporary conservative thought.

What did Henry glean from his labors? Personal satisfaction, little more. Relatively speaking, he rarely made a dime. In the whole of the 25 years, only a handful of his titles, by the most generous accounting, ever ranked as best-sellers. But he had a wonderful time.

So the clan gathered to pay him honor, and as such ritual proceedings go, this one went very nicely. The preliminary speakers rambled on too long, but Bill Buckley, as principal orator of the evening, was exactly right. He recalled Whittaker Chambers' vivid description of the typical tiny shop on a side street of a great city. Here no customer is ever seen. A curious visitor, wondering what the shop conceals, finds at a dimly lit desk in the rear an old man who lovingly offers a few bolts of hand-crafted cloth — fabric not meant to sell, but merely to endure. So, too, with Henry, keeper of the conservative store.

Every faith must have its Henry. The liberals have theirs, and I would pay them homage also. Someone has to keep the tablets, if only to preserve the possibility of enduring truth against the casual destruction of the passing hour.

His favorite hand was one that got his team into the finals of the 1948 Vanderbilt Cup.

East's one no-trump overcall was one of those psychics that work on occasion. This time it boomeranged, since Amby worked his way to seven spades. Amby might have bid seven anyway, but at the other table South stopped at six when East kept quiet.

Amby won the diamond lead with dummy's ace and played three rounds of trumps. Needless to say, he had some anxious moments until the jack of trumps appeared.

Then he led a heart to dummy's ace and ruffed a diamond. West showed out. Now Amby cashed dummy's king of hearts and ruffed a third heart. East showed out of this suit and Andy claimed the contract on a squeeze.

All he had to do was to run out the rest of his trumps. He had a perfect count of both opposing hands and West could not guard both clubs and hearts. Actually, he developed a double-squeeze situation. Only West could stop hearts. Only East could stop diamonds. After the last trump lead, neither opponent could hang onto three clubs.

Astronauts

gently lowering the craft to a landing among billowing clouds of dust.

Mission Control studied the Apollo 16 problem and determined it was "an open circuit in the servo loop" or electronics circuit which controlled the back-up steering motor of the large rocket engine.

"We ran exhaustive tests on the control and structural aspects and everything looks okay," said Mission Control. "If you remember we ran similar tests on Apollo 9 when we had a similar problem."

Apollo 9 was a successful earth orbit mission using the Apollo lunar module and command ship.

Mattingly was preparing to fire Casper's main rocket when the steering problem was discovered

He was to ignite the rocket while the spacecraft — Orion was orbiting near-by — were behind the moon. But when the two craft emerged and re-established radio contact with earth, Young and Duke announced Mattingly had not fired the rocket engine.

Mission Control immediately ordered the moon landing delay.

It was two orbits later—almost four hours — before Mission Control could decide whether it was safe to attempt the landing.

The broad problem was how to get the astronauts home if the engine failed. Without the main rocket engine on Casper, the spacemen would have to rely upon the powerful descent engine of Orion to break out of the moon's gravity. This meant the engine could not be depleted in making a lunar landing. Safety dictated that the landing had to be delayed until it was determined that the landing engine would not be needed to come home.

Officials said that only one component in the large command ship engine—the back-up manually operated steering system—was malfunctioning. There was still a normal automatic steering system. But mission rules dictated that Mattingly could not fire the engine without the back-up system. Mattingly chose not to fire the rocket.

But Mission Control decided that the landing could proceed and Duke and Young were given clearance to start their landing descent during the 16th moon orbit, about six hours later than planned.

Urge Income Tax Credits For Parents

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon was urged Thursday to seek $500 million a year in income tax credits for parents who make tuition payments to parochial and other nonpublic schools.

This was a key feature in a 58-page report formally presented to Nixon by his four-member President's Panel on Nonpublic Education.

The group was set up under the chairmanship of Clarence C. Walton, president of Catholic University, as part of an effort to redeem a Nixon pledge to help save troubled parochial schools from potential extinction.

Walton emerged from a meeting to express belief that the tax credit plan—which would directly reduce a taxpayer's annual levy—represents an idea "acceptable to the President."

Another panel member, Roman Catholic Bishop William E. McManus of Chicago, came away from the session with the same idea and even surmised that Nixon would get parochial school aid legislation moving by September.

The remarks of Walton and McManus prompted Ronald L. Ziegler, Nixon's press secretary, to make an unscheduled appearance at a briefing session.

"The President considers the tax credit approach a very active action," said Ziegler. But he cautioned that Nixon would take a hard look at possible constitutional challenges and had not committed himself to any or all of the panel's wideranging recommendations.

Measures Signed

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes signed the 28th bill of the 1972 General Assembly into law Thursday.

The new law is a fire rating act designed to foster greater free market competition with regard to fire insurance rates. Also signed were measures to require scuba divers to mark location of their dives so boat operators may avoid the area and one dealing with sewer district regulation in St. Charles and Jackson counties.

Estimate Damage To House at $25

Vandals did an estimated $25 damage to the O. W. Cramer residence, 1806 East Broadway, Sedalia police were told at 2:57 p.m. Wednesday.

According to reports, a rock was thrown through Cramer's window screen and window, destroying both. In a non-related manner, police were told by Mildred Gordy, 408 East Sixth, that the back of her car seat had been damaged by vandals sometime between Monday and Wednesday.

No damage estimate was made in that case.

Two Charges Against Man In Incident

Eddie Terry, 23, 334 West Saline, was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct and resisting arrest following a disturbance at 334 West Saline at 7:15 p.m. Thursday which resulted in Terry being treated at Bothwell Hospital after he ran his arm through a storm door.

According to police, officers Larry Farrens and Norman Riddle arrested Terry for disorderly conduct after Terry's wife reported he had been beating her. Terry was uncooperative, said Farrens, and began fighting with policemen.

Terry cut his forearm and fingers on his right hand after he bolted away from Farrens and Riddle and shoved his arm through the glass in a storm door while trying to open the door, according to police.

Terry finally had to be subdued with a night stick, said a department spokesman, after he hit Farrens and attempted to hit Riddle as officers tried to hand-cuff him outside the housing project. Virgil Frazier, an off duty policeman, assisted Farren and Riddle, according to police.

Terry was taken to Bothwell where he first refused treatment. He was then taken to the police department where he was booked before being taken to the hospital once again.

A hospital spokesman said Terry was treated for serious lacerations to the right forearm and fingers on the right hand and released.

Guardsmen Take Control Of University

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

National Guardsmen took control of the University of Maryland campus Thursday, after three consecutive nights of violent student protest against the renewed bombing of North Vietnam.

After one false start in which a busload of guardsmen had to be recalled from the university grounds Democratic Gov. Marvin Mandel declared a state of emergency and ordered the soldiers onto the campus in force.

"I'm fed up with this violence and destruction of public and private property, and I fully intend to see that it ends," Mandel said earlier, blaming "a handful" of the university's 35,000 students for the disorders.

The campus had been reported fairly quiet in the hours before the guard took over. A noon antiwar rally failed to materalize, and students strolled to and from classes in muggy 80-degree temperatures.

Under Mandel's emergency decree, a 9 p.m. curfew was imposed on the campus proper and adjacent areas. The guard was ordered to limit access to the campus to persons with official business, thus providing for the arrest and detention of anyone not having a legitimate reason for being there.

In New York City, antiwar activists defied a court order and blocked entrances to eight buildings on the Columbia University campus. Four other classroom buildings remained open.

Optimistic On Financing Buena Vista

The board of trustees of the Buena Vista Nursing Home met Thursday, and heard President John Ryan give an optimistic report about the home's future financing.

Ryan said he saw "no reason" why the home couldn't continue to operate with county support. He said the county judges had been "very, very cooperative" in helping the home meet expenses.

The county court makes up the deficit of Buena Vista on a monthly basis. Last month that amounted to $800, Ryan said.
